Pat Densmore's Wild Deed
In a Saloon.

THREE MEN ARE HIS VICTIMS

One Lies Today at the Point of Death.

ONLY A MIRACLE WILL SAVE HIM

William Horton Slashed About the Neck
But Still Wanted a Drink.

IT HAPPENED IN DEW DROP ALLEY

Densmore and William Poyser Were Quarrelling But Made It Up Early in the Afternoon—Later the Two Met in the Saloon of John McFadden—A Knife Was Drawn and the Infuriated Man Stabbed Three Others Before the Fight Ended—Poyser Was So Badly Hurt That the Physicians Think He Can Not Recover—Densmore Refuses To See Reporters—Horrible Spectacle After the Row.

With murder in his mind, his eyes staring wildly, and his right arm raised as though to strike, Patrick Densmore stood last evening in the saloon of John McFadden, while three crouching, bleeding forms lay there upon the floor, the torn and mangled victims of his drunken frenzy.

It is another chapter in the story of crime as it has come to curse the city, another page in the big book of bloody record. Four men had money, and the demon of drink owned them body and soul. They could not agree upon some trivial matter, and three took sides against the one. He chanced to be a desperate man, notorious for a life with more than one desperate encounter to darken its history, and the rest can easily be told. The quarrel widened into open warfare, and the one in jail while the three have bandaged bodies.

Early yesterday Pat Densmore, a bricklayer who lives in the West End and is well known in the city, was drinking. He met William Poyser, an Englishman who has been employed about the decorating kilns at the Goodwin pottery. They became involved in a quarrel, and fearing arrest if they fought in the streets, decided to fight it out near the China works. Accompanied by a few friends, ever anxious to see a mill, the men started for the spot, but stopped on Walnut street and the Horn switch to argue the case on its merits. Not being able to reach a satisfactory conclusion they continued their walk, and reached the appointed place. There they decided to make it up, and be friends. Poyser wanted to shake hands and be friends, but Densmore objected until Poyser made another offer, and the hands were clasped. Then they separated. Poyser and his crowd went to McFadden's saloon, and no one seems to know what became of Densmore, but he soon made his presence known. A few minutes before 6 o'clock he walked into the saloon in Dew Drop alley, and the quarrel was renewed. There are numerous conflicting stories of what took place, but the bulk of them show that Densmore and Poyser were using loud words in a very few minutes. Offensive epithets passed between the men, someone shouted a time or two, and the next instant Densmore was cutting right and left, his knife doing terrible execution. The bar room was cleaned of spectators, no one remaining except the injured man and Densmore, who quickly backed against a wall to prevent attack from the rear, and holding the bloody knife in his hand glared upon what he had done.

The saloon is at the head of an alley that opens into East Market street at the fire station. Patrolman McMillan chanced to hear the row, and hastened to the inn. As he went a crowd gathered, and when he reached the scene of the tragedy he was followed by half an hundred people. Walking boldly to the door he took in the situation at a glance, and seeing Densmore with uplifted hand called on him to come out. The man refused with a string of oaths declaring that he could "lick all the cheesies" in Liverpool. Again the patrolman ordered him to give up the knife and go to the city hall, but again Densmore refused. Meantime the crowd had become turbulent, shouting and jeering at Densmore, while McMillan endeavored to quiet them. At length Densmore tired of the scene, and walked to the door with a menacing attitude. The crowd divided his intention and scattered while he at once changed his tone, and asking the patrolman if he was under arrest, he received the reply that he was. The man immediately shut the knife with a snap, and walking to the officer said he was ready to go. Knowing his prisoner as he did, McMillan let him walk through the door, and marched him to city hall, where he was locked up.

Meantime it was discovered that Poyser was badly hurt, and Doctor Ikirt and Doctor Taylor were summoned. After being cut he staggered to his feet, and walking through the back room into the yard had entered a closet where a great pool of blood was found near the door. From there he staggered into the yard and was found in an awful condition when the physicians arrived. They soon did all that was possible in the circumstances, but the man was badly hurt. His wife was hastily summoned from Second street, and preparations were made to move him to the house of James Dunkerly, on East Market street. By this time the flow of blood had been quenched, but the man was unconscious as they bore him from the saloon on a stretcher. He was carried to the house, no one being allowed to see him but the physicians and attendants. Then it was thought that he could not recover, and at 10 o'clock he was in a very bad way, although resting a little easier. His face bore the pallor of death as he was carried through the alley, and many were heard to murmur something of the "last time he had ever seen daylight."

When Densmore was arrested one of the other men who had been hurt sought the office of Doctor Hobbs. He said his name was William Horton, an odd man at the China works. He had a long gash extending from one ear around the back of his neck, and he was in great pain. The liquor he had taken made him wild, and it was only with great difficulty that he could be held while the physician dressed the wound. At length he was pronounced as well as medical skill could make him, and he was placed in a road cart and driven toward his boarding place on the hill. As they passed through the Diamond he seemed to rest easily on the shoulder of the driver, but when Mackey's saloon was reached he suddenly became wild, and ordering the driver to stop rolled out in the street. Gathering himself together he staggered to the saloon, and walking to the bar demanded a drink. He was about to get it when some friends rushed in, and aided by the police, half dragged, half carried him to the street. There he refused to go an inch farther without a drink, and doubled into a limber mass on the pavement. To this time his friends had been as gentle as possible, but seeing he could not be handled in this way they gathered him up as though he had been so much grain, and dumping him into the cart drove down Broadway. Horton's head and arm could not be confined in the narrow vehicle, and as his friends were compelled to sit on him to keep him in, those portions of Horton hung out behind, the arm and head flopping around as the horse trotted off. This incident following so closely on the heels of the other, and happening just across the street from where Poyser was believed at that moment to be dying, created intense excitement, and exclamations of disgust could be heard on every hand. It was a scene that those who witnessed it will not soon forget. The crowd remained in East Market street for hours, expecting every moment to hear that Poyser was dead and Pat Densmore was a murderer.

QUICK WORK.

The Story of One Who Witnessed the Bloody Fight.

Perhaps the best story of the many flying around last night was that of Patsy Lynch, a boy who witnessed the fight and one of the few people who knew anything about it.

"I heard somebody yell scrap," said Patsy when asked to tell what he knew of the tragedy, "and I ran to the corner. I could see right in the saloon, and Pat Densmore was standing on one side with three or four fellows on the other. Just when I looked in the door the fight seemed to start, and I saw that Densmore had a knife in his hand. It wasn't very big, and you could hardly see the blade, but I knew he was cutting when he struck Poyser once or twice in the upper part of the body. It was done so quick you couldn't count the licks, but I knew he was hurt, because he staggered a bit, and then fell on his knees. Then Densmore reached down, and stabbed him again, his hand going up and down so fast I didn't count the strokes. Before Poyser got up, Horton jumped into the fight, and put his hand on Densmore's shoulder to pull him away. Densmore wheeled on his heel and slashed with the knife. If Horton hadn't dodged the blade would have gone clear through the neck, but he too moved half around, and started to run, while Densmore struck at him again and again. He got out of the way as quick as he could, and the fight was all over because there was nobody there to fight with Densmore."

The boy's story is borne out at least in part by the wound in Horton's neck. It could not be made except by an action such as he describes, for it is deep at the point where the knife entered the skin and becomes more shallow toward the end. It seems that Densmore struck out as though to run the knife into his adversary's throat, but Horton was too quick for him, and got away. When he reached the office of Doctor Hobbs he was in a pitiable plight, his clothes being soaked with blood, and his strength almost gone. There were four cuts in his coat, one in the center of the back, another on the right shoulder, one between the shoulders, and the last through the collar. Had Densmore been armed with a more dangerous weapon he would have easily killed Horton.

McFADDEN'S STORY.

What the Saloon Keeper Saw of the Fight.

"I didn't see the fight," said John McFadden, in whose place the row occurred, "but I heard it. I was back in the other room not paying any attention to the crowd. There were two or three strangers in the place, and the other men. I didn't hear any words louder than usual until the fight commenced, and then it was the scuffling that roused me. It was a little before six, I guess, but I was so excited with it that I don't know just what time it was when it did happen. But I heard them scuffling, and ran out. When I got where I could see, Pat Densmore was backed up against the wall over there, looking around. I didn't see a knife in his hand, and I don't know who did the cutting. The other men were gone out of the place, and that fellow they just took out of here went in the back room. I didn't know any body was cut until someone said he was badly hurt, and then the police came, and that's all I know. I never saw the man that was hurt so bad until last Saturday. He was not a regular customer here. No sir, I didn't see the fight. It was all over when I got here."

Mrs. McFadden, a buxom Irish woman, stood behind the bar very close to her husband while he was talking, and protested over and over again that she knew nothing about it. "I was working around the kitchen there," she said, "but it was all over in a minute, and I didn't see any of it except Densmore standing up against the wall. Oh dear, I'm so upset now I don't know what to do." The two talked as though they meant every word of it, and what they said is doubtless true.

POYSER MAY DIE.

If Inflammation Appears He Cannot Live.

During the fight Poyser received four cuts only one of which can be considered dangerous by the attending physician. It is in the left side, below the ribs, and the knife went to what they believe is a depth of six inches while it is but two or three inches long. It pierced the intestines, and because it can not be disinfected inflammation is feared. Should that appear, and there is danger that it will develop for the injured man is very sore today, he will die. No medical power on earth can save him.

Another cut is in the center of the abdomen. It is not as large, nor yet as dangerous, as the other. It was caused by a thrust, and is circular in shape. It does not reach to the intestines, and will not cause Poyser a great deal of trouble. An artery in the upper lip on the right side was also cut, but after the bleeding was stopped the doctors passed that by. A slight cut on the left arm, made probably when Poyser attempted to protect his heart, completes his injuries.

Doctors Taylor, Laughlin and Ikirt held a consultation this morning, and decided that Poyser's chances for life were decidedly slim. They agreed that he could be saved if inflammation could be kept away, but how to accomplish that because of the nature of the deep wound was a matter they did not explain. While men with worse wounds have recovered many with less dangerous cuts have died. When a reporter called at the residence of James Dunkerly on East Market street this afternoon Poyser was resting easy, although complaining of soreness about the abdomen. After being cut he suffered from internal hemorrhages, but they were stopped last night.

HORTON'S STORY.

What He Saw and Experienced During the Fight.

Horton was at Doctor Hobbs' office again today, as was Smith, and told the doctor how it all happened. Efforts to see either man proved futile, so his story as told to the physician is given. Densmore and Poyser had a few words in the barroom, when suddenly Densmore grabbed Poyser, and throwing him with his back across his knees began jabbing at him viciously with the knife. He had stabbed him four times before Horton could interfere. Then Densmore grabbed Poyser by the chin and throwing his head back drew back his weapon to finish him with a stab in the throat. That was where Horton saved Poyser's life for the time being. He grabbed Densmore by the shoulders, threw him into the corner and turned toward the bar. Densmore leaped upon him, and as he felt the blood gushing from the back of his neck he realized that he was intended for the second victim. Densmore had him fast, and was making desperate efforts to stab him when Smith pulled him away and got a slash across one of his fingers for his trouble. His wound was so slight that when he accompanied Horton to Doctor Hobbs' office he did not have it dressed.

DENSMORE INDIGNANT.

He Would Have Nothing to Do With Reporters.

The newspaper men were admitted to the jail this morning for an interview with Densmore, but he refused to be interviewed. He lay stretched upon the bench of his cell, and howled with rage when questioned about the fight. He refused to talk, and declared he would throw something at the intruders if they were not taken away. An attempt to appease his wrath met with no better treatment, the wild temper of the man showing plainly. His rage knew no bounds, and every question met with a wild answer. He was the only prisoner in jail, and having it all to himself made the best of it. No charge was laid against him last night as the authorities desired to know the result of Poyser's cuts before they made that move.

At 3 o'clock this afternoon Densmore was still in jail with no charge against him and he had consequently secured no lawyer. Poyser's condition is still very dangerous.

WILLIAM POYSER.

He is an Englishman and Has Lived Here Four Years.

William Poyser, the victim of Pat Densmore's knife, was married 12 years ago in Fenton, England, and moved from that place to this city four years ago. He has been employed in several potteries, and when working was looked upon as a competent man. People who know him best say that he was never quarrelsome, and when drunk was more foolish than angry. He was 30 years of age, and has worked in potteries the best part of his life. His wife is a quiet woman without children, and her grief was awful to see when she was informed that her husband was dead, such a report having been started last evening. When she arrived at the saloon she stated she had often told her husband he would end that way, as she seemed to be sure of some calamity in the future. Great sympathy was expressed for her on every hand.

THE KNIFE.

By No Means a Dangerous-Looking Weapon.

The knife with which Densmore did the cutting was safe in the pocket of Chief Gill last evening, and is by no means a dangerous-looking weapon. It is an ordinary pocket knife, rather large, but the blade used is short. It has one day been long, but continued sharpening has worn it down to little more than two inches in length. The end is so sharpened as to make it useful for stabbing if necessary, but the most effective work could be done with it in a sweeping cut. The handle is bone, and rough enough to give a firm hold, with no danger of slipping, and Densmore evidently knew what he had when he entered the saloon.

A GREAT CROWD.

The Streets Were Thronged With Excited People.

When the news of the cutting spread over the city the vicinity was soon

STEWART FOR SENATOR

OTHER CANDIDATES HUSTLING

Jefferson Takes It as a Fact That Columbiana Will Not Present a Name, and Is Shooting Out the Applicants at a Great Rate—Time May Tell a Story.

The death of Senator Wood has caused a vast deal of speculation as to his successor, and candidates are bobbing to the surface like mushrooms after a heavy rain.

Steubenville politicians with their usual vigor and push are claiming the nomination, and are pushing their claims with candidates galore. It was rumored in Steubenville last night that Rev. L. H. Stewart, presiding elder of this district of the Methodist Episcopal church would be a candidate, and stories coming from there today say that it is no joke, but his name will not be presented to the convention unless there is a good chance for him to win. The report cannot be confirmed today, but there are friends of Reverend Stewart in the city who will support him to the last should he be among the candidates. There are others after the place, among them being Henry Gregg, at one time prosecuting attorney; Hon. Bob Love, M. R. Wilday and H. G. Smith. They are willing to take the place and serve the state as well as they know how.

But they may be mistaken. It is true that Jefferson county claims the nomination by right of it being its time, but this rule is not always in operation, and Columbiana county may take a turn at the convention. There is more than one Republican with his eye on the place in two years, but any or all of them may decide to move this year, and if they do look out for fun. It will require the united strength of Harrison and Jefferson to be successful should Columbiana decide upon a candidate from its own hills and vales. One man mentioned is particularly strong, being well known not only in this county but in the others of the district. His friends think he can go into the balliwick of the enemy and get a vote or two. It would be safe for the Jefferson politicians to search out his identity, and keep an eye on him.

WAS ONLY DRUNK.

George McNicol, Sr., Says He Did Not Want to Die.

George McNicol, who, as mentioned briefly in the News Review last night, waded into the Ohio river near the Golding flint mill and came near drowning, says he did not intend to commit suicide.

His statement is in accordance with Doctor Hobbs finding that he had taken no laudanum. McNicol said he had merely been drinking and he always imagines while in that condition and near the flint mill, that he can see his son George, who was drowned there four or five years ago. He thought he saw him yesterday and rushed in the water to save him. The News Review did not guess at it yesterday like other papers, but gave this as the probable cause.

Mr. McNicol is resting easier today and will recover, although he had a close call.

BY THE SEA.

Doctor Lee Will Take a Long Ride on His Wheel.

Doctor Lee left this morning for Philadelphia, and at that place will mount his wheel for a ride to the Atlantic coast. He will then ride to New York, and after spending a short time with Rev. Frank Talmage and his family at East Hampton, Long Island, will visit many points of interest in the east. While there the doctor expects to spend the greater portion of his time in great libraries, pursuing a subject in which he is deeply interested, and arranging matters for a delightful surprise for his congregation next winter. Doctor Lee will be absent a month, returning to the city on Sept. 11.

FINAL INSPECTION.

Architect Owsley is Looking at the New School House.

Architect Owsley is here today from Youngstown to inspect the new school building before it is taken off the hands of the contractors. They have informed him that it is completed, but he will go over every part of it before a certificate is given for the work. Mr. Owsley looks upon the structure with no little pride, and thinks it is one of the best he has ever designed. He also says that it is cheap although built of good material throughout, and the city would have a hard time having a duplicate built for the same money.

ATTEMPTED SUICIDE.

George McNicol Attempted to Drown Himself This Afternoon.

George McNicol, potter, lower end of Fifth street, attempted suicide by wading into the Ohio river near the Golding Flint mill at 3:45 this afternoon. It is also claimed that he took laudanum before he entered the water. He was rescued by onlookers who were watching him, after he had gone under several times. When rescued he was unconscious, and remained in this condition as he was carried home. His son was drowned some time since, and it is thought that grief had rendered him to a certain extent irresponsible. Doctor Hobbs was summoned and did all that could be done for the unfortunate man. Mr. McNicol was injured in the Union planing mill last week, sustaining several severe cuts about the head. He is well known throughout East Liverpool.

RACING FOR GLORY.

A Boat Race on the River This Evening.

Percy Frost and Edward Wells will row across the river this evening against Hal Harker and John Hodson, and excitement in the Cosmopolitan club runs high. The stakes are just plain glory, but it is rumored that the contestants have been carefully trained for the event, and will make good time. It is suggested by the friends of one side that they sing "See the Conquering Hero Comes" if they win, but "See the Mighty Host Advancing, Satan Leading On," if they should lose.

IMPROVING THE RIVER.

The Cincinnati Plan Being Generally Discussed.

Steuenville should interest herself in the matter being agitated by the Cincinnati chamber of commerce to maintain an extensive system of locks by which a six-foot stage of water could be had all the time. The plan is meeting with favor all along the river and Ohio valley. Congressmen will meet and plan to secure the improvements.—Steuenville Gazette.

Many similar expressions are heard everywhere along the river, and Liverpool should get into the plan and help it along.

CLEARING THE WRECK.

A Sunk Boat Pulling Boats From the River.

The E. A. Woodruff, a government snag boat, is at work in the channel near Line Island removing the barges that went down there last winter.
One piece was taken out yesterday, and towed to shore. In these barges were the wire and nails which caused so many suits last spring after they were purchased by the Schneider-Smith combination. The channel has been dangerous since that accident, and rivermen will note the improvement with delight.

HURT HIS HEAD.

George Horner Met With a Painful Accident Saturday.

George Horner met with a bad mishap Saturday.
He had been out driving and while alighting from his carriage on East Market street one foot became entangled in the lines and he was thrown heavily to the pavement.
He sustained a bad cut on his forehead and was stunned for a few minutes. Although his injuries are severe, they will not prove serious. Mr. Horner is a kilnhand at the Goodwin pottery.

The Meaneast Man.

They say that the meaneast man in the world lives in this city. He was aiding a widow to settle up her business, and having some money she asked his advice about investing it.
Never having transacted business she depended on him, and when he said he knew a relative of his who would borrow it for 99 years she thought it a good investment, and was arranging to close the deal when another friend, one of the best business men in the county, advised her to invest it in some other way, as 99-year loans were a bonanza for no one but the borrower, and she took his advice, while the other fellow went out and kicked himself black and blue.

A SERIOUS CASE.

James Darragh Ill With Blood Poisoning.

James Darragh is ill at his home, 340 Fourth street, and his case is a serious one.

Darragh is a young man, by trade a plumber, and while engaged in that line recently he contracted, from the lead and other materials, a bad case of blood poisoning. He is receiving the best of medical attention, and his physician expects, with hard work, to combat successfully with the case.

Friends of the Governor.

Robert Bell and Mr. Cowan, of Cleveland, were in town today calling on Governor McKinley. They are personal friends of the great protectionist, and spent a few hours with him this afternoon, being shown around the city by Theodore Bradshaw. Mr. Bell was at one time mayor of Cleveland, and both are numbered among the prominent residents of the Forest City.

Death In Editor Moore's Home.

Special to NEWS REVIEW.
LISBON, Aug. 12.—Death entered the home of Editor Moore, of Buckeye State, yesterday evening, and took an infant child. The little one's death was the result of cholera infantum.

GETTING IN SHAPE.

Association Boys Are Training For the Big Field Day.

If hard work in careful training will bring the desired results, the coming field day of the Young Men's Christian association will be a big success.

The boys started today to get in shape for the various contests, such as sprinting, cycle races, putting the shot and throwing the hammer, and expect to follow up their practice until the day for the final test arrives.

Cutting Weeds.

Farmers are complaining bitterly because the road supervisors do not cut down the noxious weeds that grow in the fence corners. They claim that they cut down these enemies every year before they go to seed, but the supervisors neglect this precaution, and their work is for nothing.

No Notification.

Sporting life says that Trappe, the rider, was suspended at the Dayton track for 30 days, ungentlemanly conduct being the cause, but the rider has received no notification of the punishment. The Bulletin has no word of it, and Trappe will continue to ride until he hears something from an authoritative source.

The Next Move.

The next move in the bridge matter is the location of the structure, in order that there be no mistake. Colonel Stickney has not yet notified the company, but they are expected every day.

That's what you must expect of such a collar; it's the linen of it.

STORM IN NEBRASKA.

The Entire Country Swept and Much Damage Done.

DUNSMAN, Neb., Aug. 12.—This entire country has been swept by a severe electrical storm and much damage was done. The high wind was accompanied by hail and rain. The storm was especially severe in Colfax and Platt counties, while adjacent counties suffered severely. The most disastrous results followed in the vicinity of Schuyler.
All the glass in the sides of the buildings exposed to the storm were broken.
The wires for a distance of 50 miles in all directions were torn down and information secured here of events in that section were brought in by train.

While the torrents of rain helped crops in some sections, many fields were wholly destroyed by the enormous fall of hail. Streams in all directions overflowed their banks in a few hours, carrying destruction in the valleys.
Railroad property was much damaged, traffic being very much interfered with.
Washouts are numerous for a distance of 50 miles.

Disastrous Rain and Windstorm.

DANVILLE, N. Y., Aug. 12.—A terrific rain and windstorm, accompanied by heavy thunder and sharp lightning, has passed over this section, lasting nearly two hours. Many trees were twisted off and blown down. Lightning struck in several places and much damage was done among the farming community, fields of grain being flattened to the ground, corn being tangled up and blown down. A cloudburst on the Lackawanna caused a bad landslide. The storm is remarkable for the large volume of water that fell in the short space of time, nearly four inches being registered.

Closing Day an Interesting One.

THE WEIRS, N. H., Aug. 12.—The closing day of the National Universi-esting of any yet held. The forenoon services included a sermon by Rev. C.

E. Nash, D. D., of Brooklyn. After the sermon, Rev. J. M. Pullman, D. D., of Lynn spoke. This afternoon a short service was held in memory of the late Dr. A. A. Miner of Boston. Addresses
of Galesburg, Ill., Rev. G. H. Em-

CUT TO KILL

Pat Densmore's Wild Deed

One Lies Today at the Point of Death.

ONLY A MIRACLE WILL SAVE HIM

But Still Wanted a Drink.

Densmore and William Poyser Were Quarrelling But Made It Up Early in the Afternoon—Later the Two Met in the Saloon of John McFadden—A Knife Was Drawn and the Infuriated Man Slashed Three Others Before the Fight Ended—Poyser Was So Badly Hurt That the Physicians Think He Can Not Recover—Densmore Refuses To See Reporters—Horrible Spectacle After the Row.

With murder in his mind, his eyes staring wildly, and his right arm raised as though to strike, Patrick Densmore stood last evening in the saloon of John McFadden, while three crouching, bleeding forms lay there upon the floor, the torn and mangled victims of his drunken frenzy.

It is another chapter in the story of crime as it has come to curse the city, another page in the big book of bloody record. Four men had money, and the demon of drink owned them body and soul. They could not agree upon some trivial matter, and three took sides against the one. He chanced to be a desperate man, notorious for a life with more than one desperate encounter to darken its history, and the rest can easily be told. The quarrel widened into open warfare, and the one in jail while the three have bandaged bodies.

Early yesterday Pat Densmore, a bricklayer who lives in the West End and is well known in the city, was drinking. He met William Poyser, an Englishman who has been employed about the decorating kilns at the Goodwin pottery. They became involved in a quarrel, and fearing arrest if they fought in the streets, decided to fight it out near the China works. Accompanied by a few friends, ever anxious to see a mill, the men started for the spot, but stopped on Walnut street and the Horn switch to argue the case on its merits. Not being able to reach a satisfactory conclusion they continued their walk, and reached the appointed place. There they decided to make it up, and as friends. Poyser wanted to shake hands and be friends, but Densmore objected until Poyser made another offer, and the hands were clasped. Then they separated. Poyser and his crowd went to McFadden's saloon, and no one seems to know what became of Densmore, but he soon made his presence known. A few minutes before 6 o'clock he walked into the saloon in Dew Drop alley, and the quarrel was renewed. There are numerous conflicting stories of what took place, but the bulk of them show that Densmore and Poyser were using loud words in a very few minutes. Offensive epithets passed between the men, someone shouted a time or two, and the next instant Densmore was cutting right and left, his knife doing terrible execution. The bar room was cleaned of spectators, no one remaining except the injured man and Densmore, who quickly backed against a wall to prevent attack from the rear, and holding the bloody knife in his hand glared upon what he had done.

The saloon is at the head of an alley that opens into East Market street at the fire station. Patrolman McMillan chanced to hear the row, and hastened to the inn. As he went a crowd gathered, and when he reached the scene of the tragedy he was followed by half an hundred people. Walking boldly to the door he took in the situation at a glance, and seeing Densmore with uplifted hand called on him to come out. The man refused with a string of oaths declaring that he could "lick all the cheesies" in Liverpool. Again the patrolman ordered him to give up the knife and go to the city hall, but again Densmore refused. Meantime the crowd had become turbulent, shouting and jeering at Densmore, while McMillan endeavored to quiet them. At length Densmore tired of the scene, and walked to the door with a menacing attitude. The crowd divided his intention and scattered while he at once changed his tone, and asking the patrolman if he was under arrest, he received the reply that he was. The man immediately shut the knife with a snap, and started to the officer said he was ready to go. Knowing his prisoner as he did, McMillan let him walk through the door, and marched him to city hall, where he was locked up.

Meantime it was discovered that Poyser was badly hurt, and Doctor Ikirt and Doctor Taylor were summoned. After being cut he staggered to his feet, and walking through the back room into the yard had entered a closet where a great pool of blood was found near the door. From there he staggered into the yard and was found in an awful condition when the physicians arrived. They soon did all that was possible in the circumstances, but the man was badly hurt. His wife was hastily summoned from Second street, and preparations were made to move him to the house of James Dunkerly, on East Market street. By this time the flow of blood had been quenched, but the man was unconscious as they bore him from the saloon on a stretcher. He was carried to the house, no one being allowed to see him but the physicians and attendants. Then it was thought that he could not recover, and at 10 o'clock he was in a very bad way, although resting a little easier. His face bore the pallor of death as he was carried through the alley, and many were heard to murmur something of the "last time he had ever seen daylight."

When Densmore was arrested one of the other men who had been hurt sought the office of Doctor Hobbs. He said his name was William Horton, an odd man at the China works. He had a long gash extending from one ear around the back of his neck, and he was in great pain. The liquor he had taken made him wild, and it was only with great difficulty that he could be held while the physician dressed the wound. At length he was pronounced as well as medical skill could make him, and he was placed in a road cart and driven toward his boarding place on the hill. As they passed through the Diamond he seemed to rest easily on the shoulder of the driver, but when Mackey's saloon was reached he suddenly became wild, and ordering the driver to stop rolled out in the street. Gathering himself together he staggered to the saloon, and walking to the bar demanded a drink. He was about to get it when some friends rushed in, and aided by the police, half dragged, half carried him to the street. There he refused to go an inch farther without a drink, and doubled into a limber mass on the pavement. To this time his friends had been as gentle as possible, but seeing he could not be handled in this way they gathered him up as though he had been so much grain, and dumping him into the cart drove down Broadway. Horton's head and arm could not be confined in the narrow vehicle, and as his friends were compelled to sit on him to keep him in, those portions of Horton hung out behind, the arm and head flopping around as the horse trotted off. This incident following so closely on the heels of the other, and happening just across the street from where Poyser was believed at that moment to be dying, created intense excitement, and exclamations of disgust could be heard on every hand. It was a scene that those who witnessed it will not soon forget. The crowd remained in East Market street for hours, expecting every moment to hear that Poyser was dead and Pat Densmore was a murderer.

QUICK WORK.

Perhaps the best story of the many flying around last night was that of Patsy Lynch, a boy who witnessed the fight and one of the few people who knew anything about it.

"I heard somebody yell scrap," said Patsy when asked to tell what he knew of the tragedy, "and I ran to the corner. I could see right in the saloon, and Pat Densmore was standing on one side with three or four fellows on the other. Just when I looked in the door the fight seemed to start, and I saw that Densmore had a knife in his hand. It wasn't very big, and you could hardly see the blade, but I knew he was cutting when he struck Poyser once or twice in the upper part of the body. It was done so quick you couldn't count the flicks, but I knew he was hurt, because he staggered a bit, and then fell on

The boy's story is borne out at least in part by the wound in Horton's neck. It could not be made except by an action such as he describes, for it is deep at the point where the knife entered the skin and becomes more shallow toward the end. It seems that Densmore struck out as though to run the knife into his adversary's throat, but Horton was too quick for him, and got away. When he reached the office of Doctor Hobbs he was in a pitiable plight, his clothes being soaked with blood, and his strength almost gone. There were four cuts in his coat, one in the center of the back, another on the right shoulder, one between the shoulders, and the last through the collar. Had Densmore been armed with a more dangerous weapon he would have easily killed Horton.

McFADDEN'S STORY.

What the Saloon Keeper Saw of the Fight.

"I didn't see the fight," said John McFadden, in whose place the row occurred, "but I heard it. I was back in the other room not paying any attention to the crowd. There were two or three strangers in the place, and the other men. I didn't hear any words louder than usual until the fight commenced, and then it was the scuffling that roused me. It was a little before six, I guess, but I was so excited with it that I don't know just what time it was when it did happen. But I heard them scuffling, and ran out. When I got where I could see, Pat Densmore was backed up against the wall over there, looking around. I didn't see a knife in his hand, and I don't know who did the cutting. The other men were gone out of the place, and that fellow they just took out of here went in the back room. I didn't know any body was cut until someone said he was badly hurt, and then the police came, and that's all I know. I never saw the man that was hurt so bad until last Saturday. He was not a regular customer here. No sir, I didn't see the fight. It was all over when I got here."

Mrs. McFadden, a buxom Irish woman, stood behind the bar very close to her husband while he was talking, and protested over and over again that she knew nothing about it. "I was working around the kitchen there," she said, "but it was all over in a minute, and I didn't see any of it except Densmore standing up against the wall. Oh dear, I'm so upset now I don't know what to do." The two talked as though they meant every word of it, and what they said is doubtless true.

POYSER MAY DIE.

If Inflammation Appears He Cannot Live.

During the fight Poyser received four cuts only one of which can be considered dangerous by the attending physician. It is in the left side, below the ribs, and the knife went to what they believe is a depth of six inches while it is but two or three inches long. It pierced the intestines, and because it can not be disinfected inflammation is feared. Should that appear, and there is danger that it will develop for the injured man is very sore today, he will die. No medical power on earth can save him.

Another cut is in the center of the abdomen. It is not as large, nor yet as dangerous, as the other. It was caused by a thrust, and is circular in shape. It does not reach to the intestines, and will not cause Poyser a great deal of trouble. An artery in the upper lip on the right side was also cut, but after the bleeding was stopped the doctors passed that by. A slight cut on the left arm, made probably when Poyser attempted to protect his heart, completes his injuries.

Doctors Taylor, Laughlin and Ikirt held a consultation this morning, and decided that Poyser's chances for life were decidedly slim. They agreed that he could be saved if inflammation could be kept away, but how to accomplish that because of the nature of the deep wound was a matter they did not explain. While men with worse wounds have recovered many with less dangerous cuts have died. When a reporter called at the residence of James Dunkerly on East Market street this afternoon Poyser was resting easy, although complaining of soreness about the abdomen. After being cut he suffered from internal hemorrhages, but they were stopped last night.

HORTON'S STORY.

What He Saw and Experienced During the Fight.

Horton was at Doctor Hobbs' office again today, as was Smith, and told the doctor how it all happened. Efforts to see either man proved futile, so his story as told to the physician is given. Densmore and Poyser had a few words in the barroom, when suddenly Densmore grabbed Poyser, and throwing him with his back across his knees began jabbing at him viciously with the knife. He had stabbed him four times before Horton could interfere. Then Densmore grabbed Poyser by the chin and throwing his head back drew back his weapon to finish him with a stab in the throat. That was where Horton saved Poyser's life for the time being. He grabbed Densmore by the shoulders, threw him into the corner and turned toward the bar. Densmore leaped upon him, and as he felt the blood gushing from the back of his neck he realized that he was intended for the second victim. Densmore had him fast, and was making desperate efforts to stab him when Smith pulled him away and got a slash across one of his fingers for his trouble. His wound was so slight that when he accompanied Horton to Doctor Hobbs' office he did not have it dressed.

DENSMORE INDIGNANT.

He Would Have Nothing to Do With Reporters.

The newspaper men were admitted to the jail this morning for an interview with Densmore, but he refused to be interviewed. He lay stretched upon the bench of his cell, and howled with rage when questioned about the fight. He refused to talk, and declared he would throw something at the intruders if they were not taken away. An attempt to appease his wrath met with no better treatment, the wild temper of the man showing plainly. His rage knew no bounds, and every question met with a wild answer. He was the only prisoner in jail, and having it all to himself made the best of it. No charge was laid against him last night as the authorities desired to know the result of Poyser's cuts before they made that move.

At 3 o'clock this afternoon Densmore was still in jail with no charge against him and he had consequently secured no lawyer. Poyser's condition is still very dangerous.

WILLIAM POYSER.

He is an Englishman and Has Lived Here Four Years.

William Poyser, the victim of Pat Densmore's knife, was married 12 years ago in Fenton, England, and moved from that place to this city four years ago. He has been employed in several potteries, and when working was looked upon as a competent man. People who know him best say that he was never quarrelsome, and when drunk was more foolish than angry. He was 30 years of age, and has worked in potteries the best part of his life. His wife is a quiet woman without children, and her grief was awful to see when she was informed that her husband was dead, such a report having been started last evening. When she arrived at the saloon she stated she had often told her husband he would end that way, as she seemed to be sure of some calamity in the future. Great sympathy was expressed for her on every hand.

THE KNIFE.

The knife with which Densmore did the cutting was safe in the pocket of Chief Gill last evening, and is by no means a dangerous-looking weapon. It is an ordinary pocket knife, rather large, but the blade used is short. It has one day been long, but continued sharpening has worn it down to little more than two inches in length. The end is so sharpened as to make it useful for stabbing if necessary, but the most effective work could be done with it in a sweeping cut. The handle is bone, and rough enough to give a firm hold, with no danger of slipping, and Densmore evidently knew what he had when he entered the saloon.

A GREAT CROWD.

The Streets Were Thronged With Excited People.

When the news of the cutting spread over the city the vicinity was soon

STEWART FOR SENATOR

OTHER CANDIDATES HUSTLING

Jefferson Takes It as a Fact That Columbiana Will Not Present a Name, and Is Shooting Out the Applicants at a Great Rate—Time May Tell a Story.

The death of Senator Wood has caused a vast deal of speculation as to his successor, and candidates are bobbing to the surface like mushrooms after a heavy rain.

Steubenville politicians with their usual vigor and push are claiming the nomination, and are pushing their claims with candidates galore. It was rumored in Steubenville last night that Rev. L. H. Stewart, presiding elder of this district of the Methodist Episcopal church would be a candidate, and stories coming from there today say that it is no joke, but his name will not be presented to the convention unless there is a good chance for him to win. The report cannot be confirmed today, but there are friends of Reverend Stewart in the city who will support him to the last should he be among the candidates. There are others after the place, among them being Henry Gregg, at one time prosecuting attorney; Hon. Bob Love, M. R. Wilday and H. G. Smith. They are willing to take the place and serve the state as well as they know how.

But they may be mistaken. It is true that Jefferson county claims the nomination by right of it being its time, but this rule is not always in operation, and Columbiana county may take a turn at the convention. There is more than one Republican with his eye on the place in two years, but any or all of them may decide to move this year, and if they do look out for fun. It will require the united strength of Harrison and Jefferson to be successful should Columbiana decide upon a candidate from its own hills and vales. One man mentioned is particularly strong, being well known not only in this county but in the others of the district. His friends think he can go into the ballwick of the enemy and get a vote or two. It would be safe for the Jefferson politicians to search out his identity, and keep an eye on him.

WAS ONLY DRUNK.

George McNicol, Sr., Says He Did Not Want to Die.

George McNicol, who, as mentioned briefly in the NEWS REVIEW last night, waded into the Ohio river near the Golding flint mill and came near drowning, says he did not intend to commit suicide.

His statement is in accordance with Doctor Hobbs' finding that he had taken no laudanum. McNicol said he had merely been drinking and he always imagines while in that condition and near the flint mill, that he can see his son George, who was drowned there four or five years ago. He thought he saw him yesterday and rushed in the water to save him. The NEWS REVIEW did not guess at it yesterday like other papers, but gave this as the probable cause.

Mr. McNicol is resting easier today and will recover, although he had a close call.

BY THE SEA.

Doctor Lee Will Take a Long Ride on His Wheel.

Doctor Lee left this morning for Philadelphia, and at that place will mount his wheel for a ride to the Atlantic coast. He will then ride to New York, and after spending a short time with Rev. Frank Talmage and his family at East Hampton, Long Island, will visit many points of interest in the east. While there the doctor expects to spend the greater portion of his time in great libraries, pursuing a subject in which he is deeply interested, and arranging matters for a delightful surprise for his congregation next winter. Doctor Lee will be absent a month, returning to the city on Sept. 11.

FINAL INSPECTION.

Architect Owsley Is Looking at the New School House.

Architect Owsley is here today from Youngstown to inspect the new school building before it is taken off the hands of the contractors. They have informed him that it is completed, but he will go over every part of it before a certificate is given for the work. Mr. Owsley looks upon the structure with no little pride, and thinks it is one of the best he has ever designed. He also says that it is cheap although built of good material throughout, and the city would have a hard time having a duplicate built for the same money.

DEMOCRATS NAMED.

There are five Democrats whose names are mentioned as the probable candidate of the party for governor, and the way the Democratic press hauls them severally and collectively over the coals can not but create the belief that none are wanted. Mr. Sorg is the millionaire tobacco man of Middletown who served a short time in congress. He has money to help Brice in carrying the state, and personally is a very decent sort of a chap, but he doesn't suit the rank and file of the party, and will not draw out the vote if nominated. Mr. Kilbourn is another rich man. He lives in Columbus, and is respectable; is far too respectable to be mixed up in the dirty politics his party anticipate in the campaign. He has never done anything worthy of mention, and has always been the reputation of a good business man. Mr. Holden is also rich. He is the owner of the Cleveland Plain Dealer, and has carved out a name for himself. He has any quantity of money, and owns lead and silver mines in addition to his newspaper property. He has always been for Holden first and the rest of the world afterward, like a good many other people, and supported Brice when he opposed the wholesale slaughter of duties by the Wilson bill. He would not be a popular candidate, as he is not that sort of man calculated to bring people to his banner. Mr. Thomas is another man of wealth. He has made money as a manufacturer, and has gradually accumulated enough money to keep the wolf from his door for a few years at least. He is an astute politician, hates Brice like the devil hates holy water, and fights when cornered. He would do all in his power to have Thomas made governor, but would pay little attention to the legislative ticket if he believed Brice was a candidate for senator. Thurman is the last of all possibilities and is not rich. Like Kilbourn he lives in Columbus, and comes from a family well known in Ohio. His chief claim for distinction is the ardent passion for free silver which fills his soul and permeates his whole body. He is ambitious and a hard worker, but his whole being is wrapped up in the cause of silver, and he would fight the election of Brice to the senate to the last. Of course there are others, but they are not being discussed. The party doesn't care a great deal for them, and they are not being trotted out. Perhaps they will appear before the convention is called to order, but there is no indication of that just now. Brice is fighting for the future, since it is certain he will get nothing in years to come if the pitiless waves of Democratic opposition roll over his frame this fall.

THE A. P. A. WILL FIGHT

Won't Await the Supreme Court Decision at Omaha.

BLOODY WAR LIKELY TOMORROW.

The A. P. A. Police Board Announces Its Purpose to Seize City Property—The Old Force Has Doors Baricaded and Armed Policemen on Guard.

OMAHA, Aug. 13.—It now looks as if a conflict is inevitable between the Omaha police force and the A. P. A. faction, which claims authority under a recent law to appoint a new police force. For a time indications were that a compromise was probable, but the efforts of citizens who deplore the present strife, to persuade the A. P. A. to submit the controversy to the supreme court, were of no avail. The A. P. A. police commissioners are appointing their force and claim they will take possession of the city property by force tomorrow. It is stated unofficially that those of the Protestant police men and firemen who do not notify the new board by tomorrow morning, that they will hold themselves subject to the orders of the new board, will receive little consideration when the new board commences to discharge the duties of the office.

The police headquarters resembles a barracks. The disquieting rumors which are flying around, according to the police, is the basis for the precautions taken in protecting the headquarters from an assault and capture in true feudal style. The door leading from the office to the police court, and the door opening out into Jackson street from the captain's office have been looked and braced with timbers so that neither of them could be forced without the use of a sledge hammer. This leaves but two entrances to the office and only one is through the door opening out into the court from off Fifteenth street, and the other through the door and up the narrow steps into Jackson street. An assaulting party would have to come by one of these two entrances, and when they attempted this the police would be on hand to give them a warm reception.

The police are armed with their clubs and short handles, such as are used in pickaxes, and every one of them has a revolver. There are only 15 patrolmen doing duty on the streets of the city, the rest of the regular day force and some from the nightwatch being used to protect the headquarters and the city hall. The police put in their time at the headquarters in sleeping and talking over the situation. Captain Mosely says he does not anticipate any trouble, but it is deemed advisable to keep a force about the headquarters as a protection in case of an effort to take possession. The men will be kept on guard until the commission muddle is settled. The statement has been made that a quantity of arms and ammunition has been stored in the city hall, as well as the headquarters to be used by the men. This is denied by the officers.

They say the regulation revolvers carried by the patrolmen will be sufficient in case firearms are needed. The force of specials has been released, and it is understood the men will not be re-employed unless the situation becomes more threatening than it is at present. The police report that there has been no disturbance of any kind, and that there is no more reason to expect an attack than there was a few weeks ago, except that some of the A. P. A. leaders claim that Judge Hopewell's decision places the new board in possession of the departments, and it is expected the board will demand possession of the headquarters, the office of the fire and police alarm superintendent and operators and the chief of police's office. Then there may be trouble. As a matter of fact, Hopewell's decision declares that the old commission should hold office unless ousted by the supreme court.

DON'T LIKE THE A. P. A.

Senator Hoar Writes a Sharp Letter to One of Its Members.

WORCESTER, Mass., Aug. 13.—Senator Hoar has written an open letter upon the A. P. A. to Thomas C. Evans, a member of Boston. Senator Hoar writes in part as follows: "You belong to an association whose members are ashamed to confess they belong to it; many of whom, without apparently forfeiting the respect of their fellows, lie about their membership in it, when they are asked about it. You want to mass together the whole Catholic population of Massachusetts to the support of their extreme and wrong-headed priests, if any such can be found."

I think your method would overthrow the common school system, would overthrow the Republican party and would end by massing together all the Catholic voters, as proscription always does mass men together, to increase and strengthen that political power which you profess so much to dread. I think the time has come to throw down the walls between Christians and not to build new ones."

SHOULD TACKLE THE MANDARINS.

An English Paper Suggests Dealing With Chinese Officials in Riot Districts.

LONDON, Aug. 13.—An editorial in The Times this morning expresses sympathy with the Europeans in China. The article says: "It is needless to discuss the missionary controversy. The attacks are anti-foreign, and not anti-missionary. If the Pekin government is impotent to control the provincial authorities we must deal with the latter directly."

A Washington special says: The navy department has received from Admiral Carpenter a cablegram announcing that he had dispatched the Detroit to Foo-Chow, which is the nearest point for that vessel to reach the scene of the recent disturbances.

Two Blamed For the Disaster.

BREMERHAVEN, Aug. 13.—The admiralty court has rendered a decision in the inquiry made into the sinking of the North German Lloyd steamship company's steamer Elbe, in collision with the British steamer Crathie, in January last. The court holds that the blame for the collision must be attributed to the mate of the Crathie, who deserted his post immediately before the occurrence and went into the galley of the Crathie. Continuing, the findings say that the officer in charge of the watch of the Elbe cannot, however, be freed from the reproach that he omitted to get out of the way of the Crathie by a timely manipulation of the helm.

The Forger Known in Boston.

BOSTON, Aug. 13.—Fred C. Whiting, who was arrested in Chicago on the charge of forgery, is well known among horsemen of this city. Whiting was at one time a dealer in horses here, and it is charged that in April of this year he passed a forged check for $750 on L. H. Brockway, in payment for six horses, bought for the Burlington (Vt.) fire department. The check was on the Burlington National bank.

Examining the Cruiser Columbia.

BROOKLYN, Aug. 13.—The United States cruiser Columbia stands high and dry in the new dry dock here, and Commodore Selfridge, Naval Constructor F. T. Bowles and Chief Engineer Edward Farmer, who have been appointed a special board of survey and inspection to determine the nature and cause of the damage the vessel sustained in Southampton, have begun a careful survey.

To Punish the Revolvers.

ZANZIBAR, Aug. 13.—An expedition consisting of 400 men, and composed of British sailors, Sudanese and Askaris, having with it a couple of Maxim rapid fire guns and a seven-pounder, has started for Mombassa to punish the revolvers near there. Admiral Rawson and General Matthews are accompanying the expedition. Fighting is expected.

Killed Three and Injured Others.

MOUNT STERLING, Ky., Aug. 13.—The body of John Hines' sawmill at Cedar Grove, in this county, has exploded, killing Hines, his son and Engineer Smith, and dangerously wounding A. J. Downs. Hines' body was torn all to pieces, part of it being found 80 feet from where the explosion occurred.

Considers the Statement Absurd.

NEW YORK, Aug. 13.—Passengers on the steamer Newport, from Colon, report that Guatemala is on the verge of a revolution, caused by depreciation of currency. Joseph N. Yola, Jr., acting consul general of Guatemala in New York, considers the statement absurd.

A U. S. PROTECTORATE.

That's What Cubans Want to Arrange. Campos in a Bad Way.

NEW YORK, Aug. 13.—The steamer Seneca of the Ward line, from Cuba, has brought several Cuban passengers. One gentleman Havana, who would not permit the use of his name, asserted that the insurrection is more formidable than is generally believed. The rebels, he said, desire to establish a government under the protection of a strong power, preferably the United States. They are not anxious for independence because negroes form a majority of the inhabitants of the island and would dominate the government. Therefore, the rebels are delaying the capture of important seaport towns, which the gentleman from Havana says they could easily accomplish, because their plans for the future are not yet matured. To secure possession of cities would mean recognition as belligerents to the rebels, and as they are not yet ready for such recognition, they will continue their present methods of making war for a time.

The Havana man asserts that there are 8,000 sympathizers with the revolution in Havana, that 30,000 revolutionists are in the field and that the Spanish have lost 15,000 men, more than two-thirds of the number dying from disease. Campos, he says, cannot hold out long.

FOMENTING A STRIKE.

West Virginia Operators Accuse Brother Operators of Being the Cause.

CHARLESTON, W. Va., Aug. 13.—Miners on Loup Creek, in Fayette county, are being urged to strike, but as yet they have not done so. They are now paid 55 cents per car, which operators claim holds not quite two tons.

Operators say that the trouble is due to agitation by New River operators, as the vein on Loup Creek is much thicker than that on New River, and at present prices both men and employers make more money in the former field than in the latter, though Loup Creek coal can be sold cheaper. It is probable that a strike will be ordered this week.

A Doctor's Double Tragedy.

WILMOT, N. D., Aug. 13.—Dr. J. H. Whitford of this place, who was laboring under a temporary aberration of mind, shot and killed his wife. He then turned the weapon on himself with fatal effect. He has been a prominent physician here for years and the tragedy is a terrible shock to the community.

Millionaire Accidentally Kills Himself.

NEW YORK, Aug. 13.—Edward M. Cameron, a millionaire, has been found dead, and it was supposed heart disease had caused his death. The coroner's inquest, however, developed the fact that Mr. Cameron's death was caused by a pistol shot wound, accidentally inflicted by himself.

Killed on Account of a Feud.

KNOXVILLE, Tenn., Aug. 13.—As a result of a family feud John M. Smith, a well-to-do farmer of Anderson county, 12 miles west of Clinton, has been shot and killed in cold blood by James Werriek, a young farmer.

Gully Re-Elected Speaker.

LONDON, Aug. 13.—Mr. William C. Gully, member of parliament for Carlisle, has been re-elected speaker of the house of commons without opposition.

LESS GOLD IN RESERVE

$1,650,000 Taken For Shipment to Europe.

CARLISLE SEES NO DANGER.

He Says the People Need Not Fear For the Reserve, as the Treasury Department Will Care For It—Another Bond Issue Not Expected.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 13.—The treasury has lost $1,650,000 in gold for export to Europe, leaving the reserve only about $1,800,000 above the $100,000,000 point. The telegram which announced the withdrawal reached the department just as it was closing at 4 o'clock and gave no information as to the name of the exporter or the exact destination of the shipment. Mr. Curtis, the acting secretary, said he had nothing to say in regard to the matter. He had no specific information and could not say whether the syndicate would allow the $100,000,000 to be encroached upon or not.

None of the other officials would talk in the absence of Secretary Carlisle. This heavy withdrawal has given rise to a report that another bond issue is impending, but there is now no one in Washington who can speak authoritatively on the subject, or who has information not shared by the public. The best public opinion is that the syndicate will not allow the reserve to be encroached upon until after Oct. 1, when, as generally understood, their obligation ceases. But even in the event of still further withdrawals, it is believed that both Mr. Cleveland and Mr. Carlisle would see the reserve reach a point below any that it has yet touched before they would take any steps to recoup it by another sale of bonds, or purchase of gold.

It is argued that the meeting of congress is now only 14 weeks off, and that, without any reasonable doubt, the treasury, with an available cash balance of nearly $184,000,000 and the revenues slightly on the increase, can meet its obligations and have a comfortable balance remaining at the close of the calendar year. The best judgment obtainable here is that there will be no bond issue or extra session of congress, except in the event of continued heavy withdrawals, which are not looked for. A Duluth special says: Secretary Carlisle, when shown the dispatch from Washington relating to the treasury gold reserve, refused to talk further than to say: "The people need have no apprehension as to the gold reserve, the treasury department will take care of that. Everything in that regard is all right."

The secretary says that further than this he will not talk of department matters until his return to Washington. The party has left on an extended trip down the lakes and St. Lawrence river.

German Knights of Pythias Win.

CHICAGO, Aug. 13.—German Knights of Pythias have won a signal victory in the courts in the fight over blacklisting for refusal to adopt the English ritual. Waldeck lodge, No. 186, sued the supreme lodge of Illinois, asking the court to enjoin it from taking away the lodge charter and also to issue a writ of mandamus compelling it to give certain passwords. Judge Brennan rendered a decision in the plaintiff's favor.

West Virginia Leads All the States.

BALTIMORE, Aug. 13.—According to reports received by The Manufacturers' Record the state of West Virginia exceeds any other in the country in the mileage of railway under construction and projected by responsible companies. At present over 500 miles of new line are being built and projected, representing an investment of nearly $5,000,000 of capital.

Hass't Heard of More Trouble.

NEW YORK, Aug. 13.—The Rev. Dr. A. B. Lennard, corresponding secretary of the Methodist Foreign Mission board, says that he is sure there has been no more serious trouble in China. Had there been, the secretary believes he would have been informed, as he has notified the missionaries to inform the board of any outbreak that may happen.

A New Party in Kansas.

PARSONS, Kan., Aug. 13.—The Independent American party, the latest political organization in Kansas, has met in this city and nominated a county ticket. The new party believes in the free and unlimited coinage of American silver and America for Americans.

The Contractors Are Beaten.

NEW YORK, Aug. 13.—The strike of the tailors is practically at an end and the contractors are beaten. The strikers all went back to their sewing machines and scissors, with the exception of 200 men, who await a call to work.

THE ENGLISH HONOR CRISP.

He Sees the House of Commons Opened and Is Dined by Gully.

LONDON, Aug. 13.—One of the most interested spectators of the opening of the house of commons was Mr. Charles F. Crisp, ex-speaker of the United States house of representatives. Mr. Crisp was present in the speaker's gallery at the special invitation of Mr. William Court Gully, who was re-elected speaker of the house of commons.

Your representative learns that it is probable that a mutual friend will arrange a meeting between Mr. Crisp and Mr. Gladstone, on the former's return to London from his visit to Paris. Mr. Crisp said: "The opening of parliament proved a great treat to me, naturally, as I am much interested in English forms and methods of legislation. One of the most striking differences between our methods and those in use here is that the speaker is non-partisan. The members of parliament are certainly a very fine looking body of men. To an American, however, it looked very odd to see members of the house sitting with their hats on."

"After the adjournment I called upon the speaker and was escorted by him to his official residence, where I had the honor of being introduced to his wife. I found the speaker a very agreeable gentleman. I also met Mr. Balfour, the Conservative leader, and found him to be a splendid type of the English gentleman. I did not mention silver during my conversation with either gentlemen."

Funeral of Justice Jackson.

NASHVILLE, Aug. 13.—The funeral of Justice Howell E. Jackson occurred at Belle Meade, the famous home of his brother, General W. H. Jackson, six miles west of this city, in the presence of many distinguished men from a distance and a very large concourse of personal friends. The services were conducted by Rev. J. H. McNeilly of the Presbyterian church and Rev. R. Lin Cave of the Christian church. Chief Justice Fuller and Justice Brewer were present. The body was interred on the farm.

Noted Engineer and Explorer Dead.

PARIS, Aug. 13.—Lucien Bonaparte Wyse is dead. Lucien Napoleon Bonaparte Wyse, engineer and explorer was born at Paris in 1845, the son of Sir Thomas Wyse and Princess Letitia O'Brien. He was early distinguished for his explorations in Central America. He negotiated with the Colombian government the extension of the concession for a Panama canal and published several reports upon that enterprise. For his report upon this work published in 1885, he was honored by the French academy.

Trinidad Belongs to Brazil.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 13.—The archives of the state department have been searched to see if there was anything in the claim put forth that the United States as the conqueror of the Confederate states had any claim to the island of Trinidad over which there is now a dispute. Nothing of the kind could be found and it is not believed at the department that there is anything in the claim. There is little doubt that the island belongs to Brazil.

More Land For Settlement.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 13.—The acting secretary of the interior has approved an agreement with the Southern Inland of Colorado, whereby the majority of them will take lands in severalty and the rest be settled on the western third of the present reservation. After the severalty allotment have been made the lands remaining will be thrown open to settlement. The reservation contains over a 1,000,000 acres, much of it arid and barren.

Fought at a Racing Track.

KANSAS CITY, Aug. 13.—Charles McCafferty, who has a string of horses here, and Assistant Starter Dick Brown, engaged in a fight at a round fight. McCafferty claimed that Brown had shown favor to Willie L. in the match race and the men quickly came to blows. After Brown had twice knocked McCafferty down they were arrested and taken off the track. They were later placed under bonds.

Rooster Nearly Kills a Child.

WATERBURY, Conn., Aug. 13.—A 10-year-old Waterbury girl named Teoma met with a peculiar accident, in which she nearly lost her life. She was visiting the Johnson family in Bradleyville, and began teasing a rooster, which turned and attacked her in the face, severing the temporal artery. The child was bleeding to death when the physician arrived and stopped the flow.

Opposed to a Post Mortem Examination.

CHICAGO, Aug. 13.—All Chinatown is worked up over the death of Gee Seng at the county hospital, and the announcement that will be necessary for the coroner to hold a post mortem examination before the body can be buried. Prominent Chinamen say that if the post mortem is held it will forever debar the dead man from associating with his fellow men in the next world.

Ezeta's Tongue Wagging Again.

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 13.—General Antonio Ezeta has issued another proclamation to the citizens of San Salvador, in which he says he will soon return to the country to lead a revolt against the government. The army is discontented, he says, and will welcome him back as its leader.

Sued the Penitentiary.

ATLANTA, Aug. 13.—Harvey Merritt, recently released out of the penitentiary, has entered suit for heavy damages against the penitentiary company. Merritt recites a horrible story of inhuman and cruel treatment as the basis of his action.

Shot to Death by a Mob.

CAMILLA, Ga., Aug. 13.—Will Harris, a negro who attempted to assault Mrs. J. F. Monroe, a 60-year-old white woman, in Colquitt county, has been captured here and taken to the scene of his crime for confession, and shot to death by a mob.

The Indian Scare Over.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 13.—At the war department the Bannock Indian scare is considered an episode of the past. General Vincent said that nothing further was expected from General Copping until the final report was received.

A BIG MOB AFTER HIM.

Wild Chase After a Murderer's Accomplice In Cincinnati.

Officers Had to Threaten the Crowd of 2,000 People to Keep Them From Seizing the Negro—The Murderer Arrested—A Woman the Cause.

CINCINNATI, Aug. 13.—Thomas Jones (colored) and James Daily (white) met at the room of Mary Conroy (white). Daily drove Jones away. Jones then returned with another negro, Henry Williams. He attacked Daily and fatally stabbed him. He and Williams then ran out, but an officer caught Jones and a mob of 800 people took after Williams.

While running, Williams grabbed bricks which he hurled into the crowd. At one of the depots fully 2,000 people surrounded him and a brakeman knocked him down with a boulder. The officers had to show pistols to keep the crowd back.

Accused by an Heir.

SPRINGFIELD, O., Aug. 13.—Walter C. Huckins, one of the heirs of the James P. Smith estate, has filed a bill of exceptions to the final account of the estate, made by Willard Smith, the administrator, in the probate court. He charges Smith with omitting insurance dividends from the statement, with omitting several things from the inventory of the estate, and with receiving larger amounts of money from the I. O. O. F. and K. G. E. societies than he has accounted for, besides a number of smaller errors.

American Protestant Association.

CINCINNATI, Aug. 13.—The forty-fifth annual session of the American Protestant association meets here this week. The grand lodge begins its sessions tomorrow morning, after which there will be an afternoon and evening excursion to Coney Island. This organization is different from the American Protective association, and does not want to be confused with what it calls the political association. The American Protestant association is distinctly a religious organization.

A Murder Over Turkey.

POMEROY, O., Aug. 13.—John B. Lindsey of Middleport, O., has been lodged in jail for murdering William Cundiff, aged 59, a crippled miner. Lindsey went to the residence of Cundiff with six of his teamsters, after turkeys which Lindsey claimed Cundiff stole from him. Cundiff protested that the turkeys belonged to him. Lindsey knocked Cundiff down. He then knocked down Cundiff's wife and small son. Cundiff is dead, leaving a wife and eight children, all destitute.

Found Hanging to a Tree.

CLEVELAND, Aug. 13.—The dead body of August Schissler, aged 60 years, was found hanging from a tree in the woods near his home in the outskirts of the city. Schissler was a grapegrower and resided in Nottingham, a suburb east of this city. On Saturday night last Schissler's wife was found lying unconscious in the kitchen of her home. She had three ugly gashes on the head and her skull was fractured. Her husband could not be found and search was instituted with the above result.

Strange Experience of an Engineer.

SPRINGFIELD, O., Aug. 13.—Engineer William Ferris of Delaware, O., fell from his engine, near Plattsburg, at 2 a. m., on the Big Four railway. Later Ferris showed up at Plattsburg and says the first he knew of his whereabouts was when he awoke up in the woods two miles from the track. He was evidently unconscious for hours.

Rev. Russell H. Conwell Dead.

YOUNGSTOWN, Aug. 13.—Rev. Russell H. Conwell, the distinguished lecturer and pulpit orator of Philadelphia, is confined to a room in the Tod House with a severe attack of nervous prostration. All visitors are denied entrance to his room and his condition though slightly improved is still serious.

Eleven Thought to Have Perished.

JACKSON, O., Aug. 13.—Besides the four trainmen who were killed on the Ohio Southern, at Bainbridge, it is believed now that four tramps and three boys, who are missing from Greenfield, are under the wreck.

Hoy Signs a New Contract.

CINCINNATI, Aug. 13.—Billy Hoy, the old rightfielder of the Reds, signed a new contract and will continue to play with Cincinnati.

SMALL OHIO HAPPENINGS.

Hubbard intends to have electric light. Two Elyria merchants have been arrested for selling adulterated goods.

The market gardeners south of Zanesville are trying to form a pool to keep up prices.

Residents of Tiffin are alarmed over the nightly appearance of an alleged masculine ghost.

Shumaker, near Bucyrus, was sun-struck while at work on his farm.

Mrs. Nathan Clark and daughter, Miss Eva, were hurt in a runaway at Winchester.

Frank Matthews, a warrant for whose arrest for forging his employer's name was issued at Tiffin, was arrested at Sandusky and taken to Tiffin.

Francis Jennie, a tourist, received severe injuries to his back at Dayton while attempting to board an outgoing Big Four freight. He was removed to a hospital. Jennie's residence is supposed to be in Indianapolis.

Ide Jacobs has brought suit at Dayton against Mr. and Mrs. Loeb Jacobs, parents of her husband, and against Myer Jacobs, a brother, to recover damages in the sum of $25,000. The action is based on the alleged alienation of her husband's affections.

The board of health at Dayton has ordered the abandonment of a building situated in the rear of 611 South Ludlow street. The building consists of one room, and according to the report of the inspecting officer was occupied by seven persons, two dogs and 90 chickens.

LOCAL BREVITIES.

John Salmon is again on the street after an illness of several weeks.

The Turners spent a pleasant day picnicking at Rowe's grove, on the Wellsville road.

An entertainment will be given at the African Methodist Episcopal church this evening.

The Alvin club pleasantly entertained 75 guests at their new quarters on Market street last night.

The activity among bridge men continues with unabated vigor, but they say nothing for publication.

There are few Liverpool people in camp at present, almost all having returned to their work in the city.

A family quarrel in the West End caused a stir last night because the usual conditions were reversed, the woman being drunk instead of the man.

Another party went to Chautauqua this morning, among them being Mrs. Will Harker, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Leonard, Miss White, and Mrs. Anderson of Broadway.

Mr. Delvin, who was to show the beauties of a consolidated union of operative potters at a meeting in Red Men's hall last evening, failed to appear, and there was no meeting.

The crop report for the week shows an improved condition all along the line. Corn is much heavier than was expected, and pastures are doing well. Oats is an average crop, and potatoes are good.

The Young Men's Christian association team and the Shamrocks are playing ball at West End park this afternoon. Great interest is manifested in the contest and a big crowd is present.

There was a freight wreck at Industry last night, and the tracks were blocked for several hours. The evening train did not reach here until about 10 o'clock. No one was hurt. The accident was caused by a car leaving the track, and several others piled on top of it.

J. J. Purinton went to Springfield this morning with the determination to land the building and loan league convention for this city next year if possible. He has a mass of statistics relating to hotel accommodations and the many pleasures the business men will enjoy if they accept the invitation.

A lady from Pennsylvania who is visiting in this city attempted to enter a lodge of an order to which she belongs, but having forgotten the word and grip and some other necessary adjuncts she could not enter. Woman like, she appealed to her friends, but the ladies were firm, and she could not get in until she remembered the secret word.

J. L. Ainsley, who was summoned by the board of health last night to show why they should not clean about his tumble down property on Second street, failed to appear, and the board evidently forgot there was a meeting of this kind on hand, for not one of them was at city hall except Mayor Gilbert, who waited patiently until after 9 o'clock. But this does not do away with the matter, for it will be called again.

Charles McGavern was in Diamond alley last night and wanted to fight with Hiram Scott. The latter however refused to engage in battle, and the police who were watching for any sign of an outbreak among the excited crowd took McGavern to city hall. His desire for pugilistic renown was cooled when the mayor asked him if he happened to have $6.00 in his clothes. He had it, but when he walked away it belonged to the city.

Third street was last evening disturbed by the presence of J. C. Wolf, a Wheeling man with a powerful voice. He knew he could shout, and he shouted so loud and so often that the people were disturbed, and Officer Earle gathered him in. He was not drunk, and a charge of disorderly conduct was placed against his name. It cost him $5.00 to balance the mayor's books, and he went away apparently satisfied with the little chat with justice.

Captain Supplee is notifying the boys of Company E that they must attend drill on Thursday evening, and prepare for making a nice appearance in camp. Colonel Gyzer has extended his negotiations with the southern railroads another step, and notifies the captain that the regiment can decide whether it will camp at Newark or go to Chattanooga. The vote will be taken on Thursday evening, and a full expression of the members is desired.

Few if any Masons in this city will attend the convocation in Boston this year, although it was expected earlier in the summer that a party could be organized. Some Knights Templars have received the badges to be worn during the convocation, and they are beauties in gold and enamel. The design is pretty, and includes a button to be worn in the lapel. Many Templars are attached to the Pittsburg lodges, that go to Boston in special trains.

CUT TO KILL.

thronged with a great crowd. The police experienced a great deal of
difficulty in keeping the people back when Poyser was being taken to his friends, and there was that idle curiosity to see the victim of Pat Den-more's knife. The saloon was also visited by many, and there was always
some one there to show just where
the various participants stood when
the cutting occurred, but there were none to acknowledge that they had seen it done. Sympathy was divided,
but the opinion was expressed on every hand that Denmore should be punished.

The police had their hands full last
night searching for people who knew anything about the fight. Eye witnesses were few and far between when they learned the police were after evidence, but after a long search several parties about the saloon when the
row occurred were located.

SMITH NOT HURT.
He Only Got a Few Cuts in His Coat.

The rumor was flying last night that Cornelius Smith, the other man supposed to have been badly hurt, had been cut on the hands, and two fingers were gone. Smith, who lives in Gardendale, was not hurt beyond a few scratches, but his coat was cut in several places. Fortunately for Smith
he did not get close enough to the infuriated man to receive the full force of the blows, and his clothes
were thick enough to keep the knife
from his body.

THE RACES.
They Attracted a Crowd to the Park Yesterday.

The bicycle races at the East End
track yesterday afternoon made sport
for a large crowd and showed that Liverpool wheelmen can ride, and
ride well.

The track was in exceptionally good condition, and all the riders were in good form. Irons was not feeling well, but he rode hard, and made good time. The first event was half a mile
for boys, Harold Knowles and Cracker
Davidson being the starters. Knowles took the lead at the start, and dashing down the track, kept it until the end, doing the half in 1:34. They were paced by Irons. The half-mile open brought out Hale, Trappe, Bott and York, and they rode with a will. Hale won in 1:14, making a good spurt on the home stretch. Trappe rode a quarter against time, and did it in 30
flat, and Rob Harker won the slow
race, with Davidson a close second.
The mile handicap showed a host of starters, and the handicap extended almost a quarter. Irons, Hale and Trappe had the scratch, and the way
they traveled when they got away
would have made Steubenville wild
with jealous rage. Irons won in 2:25, Trappe and York following in the order named. After he had passed the scratch Holtzman collided with a boy,
and got a hard fall. Irons made a mile against time in 2:03, and the races
were over.

Since the club had but little time
for preparation, and the track is not fitted for bicycle races, the meet was
a pronounced success. All the wheelmen rode well, and the crowd were allowed the shaded retreats of Columbian park for a grandstand. Governor McKinley was an interested spectator, and Mrs. McKinley watched the races from a carriage. Will Hill made
an unusually good starter, and the judges behaved with a dignity befitting their position.

While the races were very good,
they did not reach the standard desired by the club, and there will be better ones in the future. That same old crowd, ever on the lookout for
something for nothing, was along the fence and saw the races without paying a cent. When the grounds are fenced in, and to see the people must pay, the club can afford to present
better races.

tions.

All the members of claims committee were present last evening except

The Dixon Case Will Soon Be at an End.
An Execution.

The next few days will probably see
the end of the Dixon-Goddard horse
case.

J. S. Dixon, it will be remembered, sued Goddard for damages resulting from the alleged abuse of a team of horses, and was awarded $85 and costs.
Goddard gave notice of appeal of the case, and in the meantime Dixon
moved to Tennessee. But Goddard forgot to file his transcript, and the case cannot be appealed.

Consequently Dixon's attorneys, Travis & Hason, did it with their little execution, and a sale was prevented only by Goddard promising to pay the amount in a certain length of time.

A Liverpool Soldier Fell Among Thieves
at Alliance.

An old soldier of the Forty-fifth Pennsylvania volunteers was relieved
of $15 and a railroad ticket to East Liverpool Sunday evening. There seems to be a kind of a mystery surrounding the case, and diligent inquiry has failed to reveal the name of the victim. The man is from East Liverpool and has a son braving on the Cleveland and Pittsburgh railroad.
He came to Alliance Sunday, and it seems that he fell in with bad companions. At any rate he reported Sunday evening his loss, but refused to give his name. He was penniless and returned to East Liverpool on a freight this morning.—Alliance Critic.

East End Rid of Its Only Saloon—A Midnight Move.

Constable Lyon today closed the East End "Duby," the only saloon in that section. The saloon stock belonged to Ferd Oschman, and the supposed proprietor, William Geiger, departed in the small hours between Sunday and Monday, his goods being moved across the state line before anybody was aware of it. The "Duby" has been an eyesore to all good East End people, and like all saloons which have located there its existence was brief. Allen Malcomb was in charge
until this morning when the constable locked up the saloon and restaurant
in the same building.

But He Braved the Attack and Won the Day.

A pair of drunks on a street car last night found their hands were not
steady enough to drop the required
nickel in the little slot provided by the company, and gave the money to
the motorman, who registered the
fares in plain view of the passengers.
In a short time one of the pair imagined that he had been unable to see
straight, and accused the motorman
of putting the money in his pocket.
The motorman replied sharply, and it looked as though the fellows would be thrown from the car, but they were quieted by friends, and the motorman felt he had taught them a needed lesson.

A Number of Liverpool People Are in Newark.

A number of people from this city
are in Newark attending the annual meeting of the Seventh Day adventists, now being held at the old fort near that place. At the business meeting yesterday it developed they
had 104 schools in the state, an increase of eight over last year, and they are attended by 2,020 scholars.
Interest in the movement is said to
be much greater than in other years
because the members have appointed themselves missionaries and are pushing the cause. There are at least 35
of the faith in this city.

GOING TO PITTSBURG.
Trappe, Hale and Irons are Entered for
the Races.

Trappe, Hale and Irons went to Pittsburg at noon today, and as the official representatives of the C. C. C.
C. will take part in the Ellsworth races at P. A. C. park tomorrow and Thursday evening. The riders are in good condition, and expect to bring
home a few prizes in spite of the fact that they will ride in fast company.

Liverpool Licenses.
The following marriage licenses
were issued at Lisbon today:

G. W. Romich and Bessie A. Hecka-thorn; John M. Butler and Annie Yeager; James Hackathorn and Agnes McDonald.

IT'S A FACT.
You can cheat and be honest.
Eat Ralston bread and cheat the doctor. Smith makes it and sells it.

Many years ago Dr. R. V. Pierce, chief consulting physician to the Invalids' Hotel
and Surgical Institute, Buffalo, N. Y., compounded this medicine of vegetable ingredients which had an especial effect upon the
stomach and liver, rousing the organs to healthful activity, as well as purifying and enriching the blood. By such means the stomach and the nerves are supplied with pure blood; they will not do duty without it
any more than a locomotive can run without coal. You can not get a lasting cure of Dyspepsia, or indigestion, by taking artificially digested foods or peptin—the stomach must do its own work in its own way.
Do not put your nerves to sleep with so-called celery mixtures, it is better to go to
the seat of the difficulty and feed the nerve cells on the food they require. Dyspepsia, Indigestion, Biliousness and Nervous Affections, such as sleeplessness and weak, nervous feelings are completely cured by
the "Discovery." It puts on healthy flesh, brings refreshing sleep and invigorates the
whole system.

Mrs. K. HENKE, of No. 86 North Halsted St., Chicago, Ill., writes: "I regard my improvement as simply wonderful. Since taking Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery in connection with his 'Pleasant Pellets' I have gained in every respect, particularly in flesh and strength. My liver was dreadfully enlarged and I suffered greatly from dyspepsia. No physician could give relief.
Now, after two months I am entirely relieved of my disease. My appetite is excellent;
I sleep well; my bowels regular and sleep much improved."

PERSONAL MENTION.

—Miss Mary Smith returned last night from Mountain Lake where she spent several weeks.

—Misses May and Hattie Alexander, of Salon, O., is visiting at the residence of John Tinson.

—James Woods, of Steubenville,
manager of the Huntsman ball club,
is the guest of Thomas Anderson,
Walnut street.

—Mrs. F. Sherwood, of Fourth street, who has been visiting friends for the past two weeks in Muskingum and Morgan counties, returned home today.

—Misses Miriam and Adelaide
ing for Carrollton, where they were called by the serious illness of their sister.

—Percy Albright was called to Salineville on business today, and Joe Herbert drove out for him in order that he will be here to play ball this afternoon.

—Postmaster Feyler, wife and daughter, Miss Lillian, and their guests, Doctor Shay and Miss Wooster,
of East Liverpool, O., attended the Harvest Home concert at Economy

Old People.

Old people who require medicine to regulate the bowels and kidneys will find the true remedy in Electric Bitters. This medicine does not stimulate and contains no whiskey
nor other intoxicant, but acts as a tonic and alterative. It acts mildly
on the stomach and bowels, aiding strength and giving tone to the organs, thereby aiding nature in the performance of the functions.
Electric Bitters is an excellent appetizer and aids digestion. Old people find it just exactly what they need.
Price 50 cent per bottle at T. L. Pott's
drug store.

Special to the News Review.

LISBON, Aug. 13—Two burglars last night robbed the residences of John Prosser and Doctor Morrow, and the Van Fossen boarding house. They secured clothing and money, and kept Doctor Morrow and his wife quiet
with their revolvers.

Two Lives Saved.

Mrs. Phoebe Thomas, of Junction
City, Ill., was told by her doctors she had consumption and that there was no hope for her, but two bottles of Dr.
King's New Discovery completely
cured her and says it saved her life.
Mr. Thos. Eggers, 139 Florida St., San Francisco, suffered from a dreadful cold, approaching consumption, tried without result everything else then bought one bottle of Dr. King's New Discovery and in two weeks was cured.
He is naturally thankful. It is such results, of which these are samples, that prove the wonderful efficacy of
this medicine in coughs and colds.
Free trial bottles at Pott's drug store.
Regular size 50c and $1.

But Little Better.

R. L. Edmonston returned this morning from Lancaster, where his wife has been ill for some time. Mrs.
Edmonston is but little improved and
still quite ill.

Good health is a precious boon and
those who enjoy it should preserve it
at whatever cost. Libby's Phosphatic Beef, Iron and Wine is the great
health preserving remedy, never failing tonic, strength and tissue producer and builder up of weak and debilitated women. Sold by first-class druggists. Be sure you get Libby's.
Don't be persuaded by any dealer to take something he will tell you is just as good—his object is to sell you some poor deception upon which his profits are large. Go to some first-class dealer or send $1 to us, Libby, McNeill

The Highest Priced Two-year-old Ever
Sold at Auction in America.

Hastings, the unbeaten 2-year-old thoroughbred recently purchased for $37,000
by August Belmont, the millionaire banker of New York, is the highest priced
horse of his age ever sold at auction in America. Hastings was the star of Messrs.
Gideon & Daly's stable and is looked up-
on as the probable winner of the $50,000 Futurity that will be run next September
at the track of the Coney Island Jockey club. Hastings is by Spendthrift, out of Clindrella, by Blue Bird or Tomahawk.
He has beaten Handspring and Applegate
and is generally regarded as the best
2-year-old on the turf today.

His head is a model of thoroughbred beauty and force, extremely broad and
full between the eyes, with an expression

he may lack in brawn. His hind legs are not too straight, and he stands with them
well under him like a stag that is ready for a spring, giving him, with his well
laid shoulders and finely turned quarters,
a conformation peculiarly suggestive of speed. He is brown in color and about 15 1/2 hands high. As a yearling he was deemed
to be of little account, showing so poorly
when tried that Gideon & Daly would have been glad to give him away. As a matter of fact Trainer John Hyland wanted James Shields to take Hastings off his hands as a gift last winter, but Shields did not think
he was worth wintering, and so lost the chance to get a $37,000 horse for nothing.
Hyland says his present turn of speed is
the result of strong work, the colt having
had more stiff exercise than any other 2-year-old in training near New York.

ALL SORTS OF SPORTS.

Champion Corbett's bicycle recently
knocked him out in one round, laying him
up for a week.

The building and handling of the Defender will represent when the season is over an outlay of about $300,000.

Al Smith, the famous sporting man of
New York, offers to bet $500 to $250 that Corbett and Fitzsimmons will not fight in Texas.

Cal McCarthy, once featherweight champion of America, is now a physical wreck.
He was recently a member of a "growler"
gang in Hoboken, N. J.

C. W. Stage, the ex-champion sprinter, has gone into training again. Stage has run 100 yards in 9 4/5 seconds. It is said he was recently admitted to the bar.

Tommy Conneff, the world famous distance runner, cannot swim a stroke and narrowly escaped drowning near New York recently. He was partly unconscious when rescued.

If a plebiscite were held to determine
the most popular man in England at the present moment, one might expect to find
Dr. Grace, the cricketer, miles ahead of most statesmen, poets, orators and writers.

The English tennis championships ended in a rather sensational style this year.
W. Baddeley, an apparently beaten man,
pulling out a match by a wonderful finish.
Pim defaulted, and Baddeley regained the championship which he lost to the renowned Irishman in 1893.

Minnie Madden to Star Again.

Mrs. Minnie Madden Flake is to star next season. This will be good news to
Mrs. Flake's thousands of admirers.
Those who remember her as Minnie Madden will flock to her standard once again,
and in addition the theater goes who knew her only since she was Mrs. Flake will go to see her act again in the hope of witnessing another impersonation equal to her Nora in Ibsen's "Doll's House." It is a good thing that Mrs. Flake is going to star.
The stage today stands sadly in need of
just such a sterling artist.

Buyers in Town.

Julius Levy, a crockery buyer from
New York, is here on business.

G. Heyman, of San Francisco, is here today buying ware at some of the potteries.

B. Heyman, a crockery dealer of Phoenix, Ariz., is in the city buying ware.

Business is picking up at all the
potteries, and shipments show a steady increase at the freight depot. Orders are better than they have been for months.

K. P. Beatty and Hal Harker rowed across the river last evening against Edward Wells and Percy Frost. The
boats were side by side a greater part of the distance, but at the finish
Beatty and Harker shot to the front,
and won by half a length in 1:20 while
the applauding multitudes paid just tribute to merit.

The American Mill works started

Pat Densmore's Wild Deed

One Lies Today at the Point of Death.

ONLY A MIRACLE WILL SAVE HIM

But Still Wanted a Drink.

Densmore and William Poyser Were Quarrelling But Made It Up Early In the Afternoon—Later the Two Met in the Saloon of John McFadden—A Knife Was Drawn and the Inebriated Man Slashed Three Others Before the Fight Ended—Poyser Was So Badly Hurt That the Physicians Think He Can Not Recover—Densmore Refuses To See Reporters—Horrible Spectacle After the Row.

With murder in his mind, his eyes staring wildly, and his right arm raised as though to strike, Patrick Densmore stood last evening in the saloon of John McFadden, while three crouching, bleeding forms lay there upon the floor, the torn and mangled victims of his drunken frenzy.

It is another chapter in the story of crime as it has come to curse the city, another page in the big book of bloody record. Four men had money, and the demon of drink owned them body and soul. They could not agree upon some trivial matter, and three took sides against the one. He chanced to be a desperate man, notorious for a life with more than one desperate encounter to darken its history, and the rest can easily be told. The quarrel widened into open warfare, and the one in jail while the three have bandaged bodies.

Early yesterday Pat Densmore, a bricklayer who lives in the West End and is well known in the city, was drinking. He met William Poyser, an Englishman who has been employed about the decorating kilns at the Goodwin pottery. They became involved in a quarrel, and fearing arrest if they fought in the streets, decided to fight it out near the China works. Accompanied by a few friends, ever anxious to see a mill, the men started for the spot, but stopped on Walnut street, and the Horn switch to argue the case on its merits. Not being able to reach a satisfactory conclusion they continued their walk, and reached the appointed place. There they decided to make it up, and be friends. Poyser wanted to shake hands and be friends, but Densmore objected until Poyser made another offer, and the hands were clasped. Then they separated. Poyser and his crowd went to McFadden's saloon, and no one seems to know what became of Densmore, but he soon made his presence known. A few minutes before 6 o'clock he walked into the saloon in Dew Drop alley, and the quarrel was renewed. There are numerous conflicting stories of what took place, but the bulk of them show that Densmore and Poyser were using loud words in a very few minutes. Offensive epithets passed between the men, someone shouted a time or two, and the next instant Densmore was cutting right and left, his knife doing terrible execution. The bar room was cleaned of spectators, no one remaining except the injured man and Densmore, who quickly backed against a wall to prevent attack from the rear, and holding the bloody knife in his hand glared upon what he had done.

The saloon is at the head of an alley that opens into East Market street at the fire station. Patrolman McMillan chanced to hear the row, and hastened to the inn. As he went a crowd gathered, and when he reached the scene of the tragedy he was followed by half an hundred people. Walking boldly to the door he took in the situation at a glance, and seeing Densmore with uplifted hand called on him to come out. The man refused with a string of oaths declaring that he could "lick all the cheesies" in Liverpool. Again the patrolman ordered him to give up the knife and go to the city hall, but again Densmore refused. Meantime the crowd had become turbulent, shouting and leering at Densmore, while McMillan endeavored to quiet them. At length Densmore tired of the scene, and walked to the door with a menacing attitude. The crowd divided his intention and scattered while he at once changed his tone, and asking the patrolman if he was under arrest, he received the reply that he was. The man immediately shut the knife with a snap, and walking to the officer said he was ready to go. Knowing his prisoner as he did, McMillan let him walk through the door, and marched him to city hall, where he was locked up.

Meantime it was discovered that Poyser was badly hurt, and Doctor Ikirt and Doctor Taylor were summoned. After being cut he staggered to his feet, and walking through the back room into the yard had entered a closet where a great pool of blood was found near the door. From there he staggered into the yard and was found in an awful condition when the physicians arrived. They soon did all that was possible in the circumstances, but the man was badly hurt. His wife was hastily summoned from Second street, and preparations were made to move him to the house of James Dunkerly, on East Market street. By this time the flow of blood had been quenched, but the man was unconscious as they bore him from the saloon on a stretcher. He was carried to the house, no one being allowed to see him but the physicians and attendants. Then it was thought that he could not recover, and at 10 o'clock he was in a very bad way, although resting a little easier. His face bore the pallor of death as he was carried through the alley, and many were heard to murmur something of the "last time he had ever seen daylight."

When Densmore was arrested one of the other men who had been hurt sought the office of Doctor Hobbs. He said his name was William Horton, an odd man at the China works. He had a long gash extending from one ear around the back of his neck, and he was in great pain. The liquor he had taken made him wild, and it was only with great difficulty that he could be held while the physician dressed the wound. At length he was pronounced as well as medical skill could make him, and he was placed in a road cart and driven toward his boarding place on the hill. As they passed through the Diamond he seemed to rest easily on the shoulder of the driver, but when Mackey's saloon was reached he suddenly became wild, and ordering the driver to stop rolled out in the street. Gathering himself together he staggered to the saloon, and walking to the bar demanded a drink. He was about to get it when some friends rushed in, and aided by the police, half dragged, half carried him to the street. There he refused to go an inch farther without a drink, and doubled into a lumber mass on the pavement. To this time his friends had been as gentle as possible, but seeing he could not be handled in this way they gathered him up as though he had been so much grain, and dumping him into the cart drove down Broadway. Horton's head and arm could not be confined in the narrow vehicle, and as his friends were compelled to sit on him to keep him in, those portions of Horton hung out behind, the arm and head flopping around as the horse trotted off. This incident following so closely on the heels of the other, and happening just across the street from where Poyser was believed at that moment to be dying, created intense excitement, and exclamations of disgust could be heard on every hand. It was a scene that those who witnessed it will not soon forget. The crowd remained in East Market street for hours, expecting every moment to hear that Poyser was dead and Pat Densmore was a murderer.

QUICK WORK.

Perhaps the best story of the many flying around last night was that of Patsy Lynch, a boy who witnessed the fight and one of the few people who knew anything about it.

"I heard somebody yell scrap," said Patsy when asked to tell what he knew of the tragedy, "and I ran to the corner. I could see right in the saloon, and Pat Densmore was standing on one side with three or four fellows on the other. Just when I looked in the door the fight seemed to start, and I saw that Densmore had a knife in his hand. It wasn't very big, and you could hardly see the blade, but I knew he was cutting when he struck Poyser once or twice in the upper part of the body. It was done so quick you couldn't count the licks, but I knew he was hurt, because he staggered a bit, and then fell on

The boy's story is borne out at least in part by the wound in Horton's neck. It could not be made except by an action such as he describes, for it is deep at the point where the knife entered the skin and becomes more shallow toward the end. It seems that Densmore struck out as though to run the knife into his adversary's throat, but Horton was too quick for him, and got away. When he reached the office of Doctor Hobbs he was in a pitiable plight, his clothes being soaked with blood, and his strength almost gone. There were four cuts in his coat, one in the center of the back, another on the right shoulder, one between the shoulders, and the last through the collar. Had Densmore been armed with a more dangerous weapon he would have easily killed Horton.

McFADDEN'S STORY.

What the Saloon Keeper Saw of the Fight.

"I didn't see the fight," said John McFadden, in whose place the row occurred, "but I heard it. I was back in the other room not paying any attention to the crowd. There were two or three strangers in the place, and the other men. I didn't hear any words louder than usual until the fight commenced, and then it was the scuffling that roused me. It was a little before six, I guess, but I was so excited with it that I don't know just what time it was when it did happen. But I heard them scuffling, and ran out. When I got where I could see, Pat Densmore was backed up against the wall over there, looking around. I didn't see a knife in his hand, and I don't know who did the cutting. The other men were gone out of the place, and that fellow they just took out of here went in the back room. I didn't know any body was cut until someone said he was badly hurt, and then the police came, and that's all I know. I never saw the man that was hurt so bad until last Saturday. He was not a regular customer here. No sir, I didn't see the fight. It was all over when I got here."

Mrs. McFadden, a buxom Irish woman, stood behind the bar very close to her husband while he was talking, and protested over and over again that she knew nothing about it. "I was working around the kitchen there," she said, "but it was all over in a minute, and I didn't see any of it except Densmore standing up against the wall. Oh dear, I'm so upset now I don't know what to do." The two talked as though they meant every word of it, and what they said is doubtless true.

POYSER MAY DIE.

If Inflammation Appears He Cannot Live.

During the fight Poyser received four cuts only one of which can be considered dangerous by the attending physician. It is in the left side, below the ribs, and the knife went to what they believe is a depth of six inches while it is but two or three inches long. It pierced the intestines, and because it can not be disinfected inflammation is feared. Should that appear, and there is danger that it will develop for the injured man is very sore today, he will die. No medical power on earth can save him.

Another cut is in the center of the abdomen. It is not as large, nor yet as dangerous as the other. It was caused by a thrust, and is circular in shape. It does not reach to the intestines, and will not cause Poyser a great deal of trouble. An artery in the upper lip on the right side was also cut, but after the bleeding was stopped the doctors passed that by. A slight cut on the left arm, made probably when Poyser attempted to protect his heart, completes his injuries.

Doctors Taylor, Laughlin and Ikirt held a consultation this morning, and decided that Poyser's chances for life were decidedly slim. They agreed that he could be saved if inflammation could be kept away, but how to accomplish that because of the nature of the deep wound was a matter they did not explain. While men with worse wounds have recovered many with less dangerous cuts have died. When a reporter called at the residence of James Dunkerly on East Market street this afternoon Poyser was resting easy, although complaining of soreness about the abdomen. After being cut he suffered from internal hemorrhages, but they were stopped last night.

HORTON'S STORY.

What He Saw and Experienced During the Fight.

Horton was at Doctor Hobbs' office again today, as was Smith, and told the doctor how it all happened. Efforts to see either man proved futile, so his story as told to the physician is given. Densmore and Poyser had a few words in the barroom, when suddenly Densmore grabbed Poyser, and throwing him with his back against his knees began jabbing at him viciously with the knife. He had stabbed him four times before Horton could interfere. Then Densmore grabbed Poyser by the chin and throwing his head back drew back his weapon to finish him with a stab in the throat. That was where Horton saved Poyser's life for the time being. He grabbed Densmore by the shoulders, threw him into the corner and turned toward the bar. Densmore leaped upon him, and as he felt the blood gushing from the back of his neck he realized that he was intended for the second victim. Densmore had him fast, and was making desperate efforts to stab him when Smith pulled him away and got a slash across one of his fingers for his trouble. His wound was so slight that when he accompanied Horton to Doctor Hobbs' office he did not have it dressed.

DENSMORE INDIGNANT.

He Would Have Nothing to Do With Reporters.

The newspaper men were admitted to the jail this morning for an interview with Densmore, but he refused to be interviewed. He lay stretched upon the bench of his cell, and howled with rage when questioned about the fight. He refused to talk, and declared he would throw something at the intruders if they were not taken away. An attempt to appease his wrath met with no better treatment, the wild temper of the man showing plainly. His rage knew no bounds, and every question met with a wild answer. He was the only prisoner in jail, and having it all to himself made the best of it. No charge was laid against him last night as the authorities desired to know the result of Poyser's cuts before they made that move.

At 3 o'clock this afternoon Densmore was still in jail with no charge against him and he had consequently secured no lawyer. Poyser's condition is still very dangerous.

WILLIAM POYSER.

He is an Englishman and Has Lived Here Four Years.

William Poyser, the victim of Pat Densmore's knife, was married 12 years ago in Fenton, England, and moved from that place to this city four years ago. He has been employed in several potteries, and when working was looked upon as a competent man. People who know him best say that he was never quarrelsome, and when drunk was more foolish than angry. He was 30 years of age, and has worked in potteries the best part of his life. His wife is a quiet woman without children, and her grief was awful to see when she was informed that her husband was dead, such a report having been started last evening. When she arrived at the saloon she stated she had often told her husband he would end that way, as she seemed to be sure of some calamity in the future. Great sympathy was expressed for her on every hand.

THE KNIFE.

The knife with which Densmore did the cutting was safe in the pocket of Chief Gill last evening, and is by no means a dangerous-looking weapon. It is an ordinary pocket knife, rather large, but the blade used is short. It has one day been long, but continued sharpening has worn it down to little more than two inches in length. The end is so sharpened as to make it useful for stabbing if necessary, but the most effective work could be done with it in a sweeping cut. The handle is bone, and rough enough to give a firm hold, with no danger of slipping, and Densmore evidently knew what he had when he entered the saloon.

A GREAT CROWD.

The Streets Were Thronged With Excited People.

When the news of the cutting spread over the city the vicinity was soon

STEWART FOR SENATOR

OTHER CANDIDATES HUSTLING

Jefferson Takes It as a Fact That Columbiana Will Not Present a Name, and Is Shooting Out the Applicants at a Great Rate—Time May Tell a Story.

The death of Senator Wood has caused a vast deal of speculation as to his successor, and candidates are bobbing to the surface like mushrooms after a heavy rain.

Steuvenville politicians with their usual vigor and push are claiming the nomination, and are pushing their claims with candidates galore. It was rumored in Steuvenville last night that Rev. L. H. Stewart, presiding elder of this district of the Methodist Episcopal church would be a candidate, and stories coming from there today say that it is no joke, but his name will not be presented to the convention unless there is a good chance for him to win. The report cannot be confirmed today, but there are friends of Reverend Stewart in the city who will support him to the last should he be among the candidates. There are others after the place, among them being Henry Gregg, at one time prosecuting attorney; Hon. Bob Love, M. R. Wilday and H. G. Smith. They are willing to take the place and serve the state as well as they know how.

But they may be mistaken. It is true that Jefferson county claims the nomination by right of it being its time, but this rule is not always in operation, and Columbiana county may take a turn at the convention. There is more than one Republican with his eye on the place in two years, but any or all of them may decide to move this year, and if they do look out for fun. It will require the united strength of Harrison and Jefferson to be successful should Columbiana decide upon a candidate from its own hills and vales. One man mentioned is particularly strong, being well known not only in this county but in the others of the district. His friends think he can go into the balliwick of the enemy and get a vote or two. It would be safe for the Jefferson politicians to search out his identity, and keep an eye on him.

WAS ONLY DRUNK.

George McNicol, Sr., Says He Did Not Want to Die.

George McNicol, who, as mentioned briefly in the News Review last night, waded into the Ohio river near the Golding flint mill and came near drowning, says he did not intend to commit suicide.

His statement is in accordance with Doctor Hobbs finding that he had taken no laudanum. McNicol said he had merely been drinking and he always imagines while in that condition and near the flint mill, that he can see his son George, who was drowned there four or five years ago. He thought he saw him yesterday and rushed in the water to save him. The News Review did not guess at it yesterday like other papers, but gave this as the probable cause.

Mr. McNicol is resting easier today and will recover, although he had a close call.

BY THE SEA.

Doctor Lee Will Take a Long Ride on His Wheel.

Doctor Lee left this morning for Philadelphia, and at that place will mount his wheel for a ride to the Atlantic coast. He will then ride to New York, and after spending a short time with Rev. Frank Talmage and his family at East Hampton, Long Island, will visit many points of interest in the east. While there the doctor expects to spend the greater portion of his time in great libraries, pursuing a subject in which he is deeply interested, and arranging matters for a delightful surprise for his congregation next winter. Doctor Lee will be absent a month, returning to the city on Sept. 11.

FINAL INSPECTION.

Architect Owsley Is Looking at the New School House.

Architect Owsley is here today from Youngstown to inspect the new school building before it is taken off the hands of the contractors. They have informed him that it is completed, but he will go over every part of it before a certificate is given for the work. Mr. Owsley looks upon the structure with no little pride, and thinks it is one of the best he has ever designed. He also says that it is cheap although built of good material throughout, and the city would have a hard time having a duplicate built for the same money.

CUT TO KILL.

police experienced a great deal of
difficulty in keeping the people back
when Poyser was being taken to his
friends, and there was that idle curiosity to see the victim of Pat Den-
more's knife. The saloon was also
some one there to show just where
the various participants stood when
seen it done. Sympathy was divided,
but the opinion was expressed on
every hand that Denmore should be
punished.

The police had their hands full last
night searching for people who knew
anything about the fight. Eye witnesses were few and far between when
they learned the police were after
evidence, but after a long search several parties about the saloon when the
row occurred were located.

SMITH NOT HURT.

Coat.

The rumor was flying last night that Cornelius Smith, the other man supposed to have been badly hurt, had been cut on the hands, and two figures were gone. Smith, who lives in Gardendale, was not hurt beyond a
few scratches, but his coat was cut in
several places. Fortunately for Smith
he did not get close enough to the
infuriated man to receive the full
force of the blows, and his clothes
were thick enough to keep the knife
from his body.

THE RACES.

They Attracted a Crowd to the Park Yesterday.

The bicycle races at the East End
track yesterday afternoon made sport
for a large crowd and showed that Liverpool wheelmen can ride, and
ride well.

The track was in exceptionally good condition, and all the riders were in good form. Irons was not feeling
well, but he rode hard, and made good
time. The first event was half a mile
for boys; Harold Knowles and Cracker
Davidson being the starters. Knowles
took the lead at the start, and dashing down the track, kept it until the
paced by Irons. The half-mile open brought out Hale, Trappe, Bott and
won in 1:14, making a good spurt on
the home stretch. Trappe rode a quarter against time, and did it in 30
flat, and Rob Harker won the slow
race, with Davidson a close second.

The mile handicap showed a host of
starters, and the handicap extended
almost a quarter. Irons, Hale and Trappe had the scratch, and the way
they traveled when they got away
would have made Steubenville wild
with jealous rage. Irons won in 2:25, Trappe and York following in the order named. After he had passed the
scratch Holtzman collided with a boy,
and got a hard fall. Irons made a mile against time in 2:03, and the races
were over.

Since the club had but little time
for preparation, and the track is not
fitted for bicycle races, the meet was
a pronounced success. All the wheel-
men rode well, and the crowd were
allowed the shaded retreats of Columbian park for a grandstand. Governor McKinley was an interested specta-
tor, and Mrs. McKinley watched the races from a carriage. Will Hill made
an unusually good starter, and the
judges behaved with a dignity befit-
ting their position.

While the races were very good,
they did not reach the standard desired by the club, and there will be better ones in the future. That same
old crowd, ever on the lookout for
something for nothing, was along the
fence and saw the races without paying a cent. When the grounds are
pay, the club can afford to present
better races.

PAYING BILLS.

Claims Committee Liquidated Obligations.

All the members of claims committee were present last evening except Horwell, and the following bills were paid:

GODDARD MUST PAY.

The Dixon Case Will Soon Be at an End.
An Execution.

The next few days will probably see
the end of the Dixon-Goddard horse
case.

J. S. Dixon, it will be remembered,
sued Goddard for damages resulting
from the alleged abuse of a team of horses, and was awarded $85 and costs.
Goddard gave notice of appeal of the
case, and in the meantime Dixon
moved to Tennessee. But Goddard forgot to file his transcript, and the
case cannot be appealed.

Consequently Dixon's attorneys,
Travis & Hasson, did it with their little execution, and a sale was prevented only by Goddard promising to pay the amount in a certain length of
time.

ROBBED A VETERAN.

A Liverpool Soldier Fell Among Thieves
at Alliance.

An old soldier of the Forty-fifth Pennsylvania volunteers was relieved
of $15 and a railroad ticket to East Liverpool Sunday evening. There seems to be a kind of a mystery surrounding the case, and diligent inquiry has failed to reveal the name of
the victim. The man is from East Liverpool and has a son bracking on the Cleveland and Pittsburgh railroad.
He came to Alliance Sunday, and it seems that he fell in with bad
companions. At any rate he reported Sunday evening his loss, but refused
to give his name. He was penniless
and returned to East Liverpool on a

CLOSED THE DUBY.

East End Kid of Its Only Saloon—A Midnight Move.

Constable Lyon today closed the East End "Duby," the only saloon in
that section. The saloon stock belonged to Ferd Oeschman, and the supposed proprietor, William Geiger, departed in the small hours between Sunday and Monday, his goods being
moved across the state line before
anybody was aware of it. The "Duby" has been an eyecore to all good East End people, and like all saloons which
have located there its existence was
brief. Allen Malcomb was in charge
until this morning when the constable
locked up the saloon and restaurant
in the same building.

CHARGED THE MOTORMAN.

But He Braved the Attack and Won the Day.

A pair of drunks on a street car last
night found their hands were not
steady enough to drop the required
nickel in the little slot provided by
the company, and gave the money to
the motorman, who registered the
fares in plain view of the passengers.
In a short time one of the pair imagined that he had been unable to see
straight, and accused the motorman
of putting the money in his pocket.
The motorman replied sharply, and it
looked as though the fellows would be
thrown from the car, but they were
quieted by friends, and the motorman
felt he had taught them a needed lesson.

Newark.

A number of people from this city
are in Newark attending the annual meeting of the Seventh Day advent-
ists, now being held at the old fort
near that place. At the business meeting yesterday it developed they
had 104 schools in the state, an increase of eight over last year, and
they are attended by 2,020 scholars.
Interest in the movement is said to
be much greater than in other years
because the members have appointed
themselves missionaries and are pushing the cause. There are at least 35
of the faith in this city.

GOING TO PITTSBURG.

Trappe, Hale and Irons are Entered for
the Races.

Trappe, Hale and Irons went to Pittsburg at noon today, and as the official representatives of the C. C. C.
C. will take part in the Ellsworth
races at P. A. C. park tomorrow and Thursday evening. The riders are in good condition, and expect to bring
home a few prizes in spite of the fact

Liverpool Licenses.

The following marriage licenses
were issued at Lisbon today:
G. W. Romigh and Bessie A. Heeka-
thorn; John M. Butler and Annie
McDonald.

IT'S A FACT.

You can cheat and be honest.
Eat Ralston bread and cheat the doctor. Smith makes it and sells it.

Many years ago Dr. R. V. Pierce, chief consulting physician to the Invalids' Hotel
and Surgical Institute, Buffalo, N. Y., compounded this medicine of vegetable ingredients which had an especial effect upon the
stomach and liver, rousing the organs to
healthful activity as well as purifying and
enriching the blood. By such means the
stomach and the nerves are supplied with
pure blood, they will not do duty without it
any more than a locomotive can run without coal. You can not get a lasting cure of Dyspepsia, or Indigestion, by taking artificially digested foods or peppin—the stomach must do its own work in its own way.
Do not put your nerves to sleep with so-
called celery mixtures, it is better to go to
the seat of the difficulty and feed the nerve
Indigestion, Biliousness and Nervous Af-
fections, such as sleeplessness and weak,
nervous feelings are completely cured by
brings refreshing sleep and invigorates the
whole system.

Mrs. K. HENKE, of No. 86 North Halsted St., Chicago, Ill., writes: "I regard my improvement as simply wonderful. Since taking Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery in connection with his Pleasant Pellets I have gained in every respect, particularly in flesh and strength. My liver was dreadfully enlarged and I suffered greatly from dyspepsia. No physician could give relief.

Now after two
months I am entirely relieved of my stomach and bowels
is excellent, food
well digested, much improved."

Mrs. HENKE.

PERSONAL MENTION.

—Miss Mary Smith returned last night from Mountain Lake where she
spent several weeks.

—Misses May and Hattie Alexander, of Solon, O., is visiting at the residence of John Tinson.

—James Woods, of Steubenville,
manager of the Huntsman ball club,
is the guest of Thomas Anderson,
Walnut street.

—Mrs. F. Sherwood, of Fourth street,
who has been visiting friends for the
past two weeks in Muskingum and Morgan counties, returned home today.

ing for Carrollton, where they were
sister.

—Percy Albright was called to Salineville on business today, and Joe Herbert drove out for him in order
that he will be here to play ball this
afternoon.

—Postmaster Feyler, wife and
guests, Doctor Shay and Miss Wooster,
Harvest Home concert at Economy

Old People.

Old people who require medicine to
regulate the bowels and kidneys will
find the true remedy in Electric Bitters. This medicine does not
stimulate and contains no whiskey
nor other intoxicant, but acts as a tonic and alterative. It acts mildly
on the stomach and bowels, aiding
strength and giving tone to the
organs, thereby aiding nature in the performance of its functions.
Electric Bitters is an excellent appetizer and aids digestion. Old people find it just exactly what they need.
Price 50 cent per bottle at T. L. Pott's
drug store.

Lisbon is Learning.

SPECIAL TO THE NEWS REVIEW.
LISBON, Aug. 13.—Two burglars last night robbed the residences of John Prosser and Doctor Morrow, and the Van Fossen boarding house. They secured clothing and money, and kept Doctor Morrow and his wife quiet
with their revolvers.

Two Lives Saved.

Mrs. Phoebe Thomas, of Junction
City, Ill., was told by her doctors she
had consumption and that there was no hope for her, but two bottles Dr.
King's New Discovery completely
cured her and says it saved her life.
Mr. Thos. Eggers, 139 Florida St., San Francisco, suffered from a dreadful
cold, approaching consumption, tried
without result everything else then bought one bottle of Dr. King's New Discovery and in two weeks was cured.
He is naturally thankful. It is such
results, of which these are samples,
that prove the wonderful efficacy of
this medicine in coughs and colds.
Free trial bottles at Potts drug store.
Regular size 50c and $1.

But Little Better.

R. L. Edmonston returned this morning from Lancaster, where his wife has been ill for some time. Mrs.
Edmonston is but little improved and
still quite ill.

Good health is a precious boon and
those who enjoy it should preserve it
at whatever cost. Libby's Phosphatic Beef, Iron and Wine is the great
health preserving remedy, never failing to strengthen and tissue producer and builder up of weak and debilitated women. Sold by first-class druggists. Be sure you get Libby's.
Don't be persuaded by any dealer to
take something he will tell you is just
as good—his object is to sell you some poor decoction upon which his profits
are large. Go to some first-class dealer or send $1 to us, Libby, McNeill or send to Alvin H. Bulger, leading druggist, East Liverpool, O.

HASTINGS, THE $37,000 BEAUTY.

Sold at Auction in America.

Hastings, the unbent 2-year-old thoroughbred recently purchased for $37,000
by August Belmont, the millionaire banker of New York, is the highest priced
horse of his age ever sold at auction in America. Hastings was the star of Messrs.
Gideon & Daly's stable and is looked up-
on as the probable winner of the $50,000
Futurity that will be run next September
at the track of the Coney Island Jockey
club. Hastings is by Spendthrift, out of Cinderella, by Blue Ruin or Tomahawk.
He has beaten Handspring and Applegate
and is generally regarded as the best
2-year-old on the turf today.

His head is a model of thoroughbred
beauty and force, extremely broad and
full between the eyes, with an expression of mingled intelligence, determination and courage that is rarely equaled. He is rather on the fine order in bone and substance, although there is about him that wiry, whipcord quality characteristic of the thoroughbred, which makes up for whatever

HASTINGS.

he may lack in brawn. His hind legs are
not too straight, and he stands with them
well under him like a stag that is ready
for a spring, giving him, with his well
laid shoulders and finely turned quarters,
a conformation peculiarly suggestive of
speed. He is brown in color and about 15.2
hands high. As a yearling he was deemed
to be of little account, showing so poorly
when tried that Gideon & Daly would have
been glad to give him away. As a matter of fact Trainer John Hyland wanted James Shields to take Hastings off his hands as a gift last winter, but Shields did not think
he was worth wintering, and so lost the
chance to get a $37,000 horse for nothing.
Hyland says his present turn of speed is
the result of strong work, the colt having
had more stiff exercise than any other
2-year-old in training near New York.

August Belmont, Hastings' new owner, is president of the Jockey club and owner of the Belmont stable. He is the son and namesake of the famous financier and turf-man who died a few years ago.

ALL SORTS OF SPORTS.

Champion Corbett's bicycle recently
knocked him out in one round, laying him
up for a week.

The building and handling of the Defender will represent when the season is
over an outlay of about $300,000.

Al Smith, the famous sporting man of
New York, offers to bet $500 to $250 that Corbett and Fitzsimmons will not fight in Texas.

Cal McCarthy, once featherweight champion of America, is now a physical wreck.
gang in Hoboken, N. J.

C. W. Stage, the ex-champion sprinter,
has gone into training again. Stage has
run 100 yards in 9.4 seconds, it is said.
He was recently admitted to the bar.

Tommy Conneff, the world famous distance runner, cannot swim a stroke and
narrowly escaped drowning near New York recently. He was partly unconscious when
rescued.

If a plebiscite were held to determine
the most popular man in England at the
present moment, one might expect to find
Dr. Grace, the cricketer, miles ahead of most statesmen, poets, orators and writers.

The English tennis championships ended in a rather sensational style this year.
W. Baddeley, an apparently beaten man,
pulling out a match by a wonderful finish.
Pim defaulted, and Baddeley regained the
championship which he lost to the re-

Minnie Madden to Star Again.

Mrs. Minnie Madden Fluke is to star next season. This will be good news to
Mrs. Fluke's thousands of admirers.
Those who remember her as Minnie Mad-
den will flock to her standard once again,
and in addition the theater goers who knew her only since she was Mrs. Fluke will go to see her act again in the hope of witness-
Norma in Ibsen's "Doll's House." It is a good thing that Mrs. Fluke is going to star.
The stage today stands sadly in need of
just such a sterling artist.

Buyers in Town.

Julius Levy, a crockery buyer from
New York, is here on business.

G. Heyman, of San Francisco, is here today buying ware at some of the
potteries.

B. Heyman, a crockery dealer of Phoenix, Ariz., is in the city buying
ware.

Business is picking up at all the
potteries, and shipments show a steady
increase at the freight depot. Orders
are better than they have been for months.

Beatty and Harker Won.

K. P. Beatty and Hal Harker rowed
Edward Wells and Percy Frost. The
boats were side by side a greater part
of the distance, but at the finish
Beatty and Harker shot to the front,
and won by half a length in 1:20 while
the applauding multitudes paid just
tribute to merit.

The American Still works started up yesterday morning after a shut down of several weeks. There is not a full force at work, but the plant will probably be running full handed in a few days.
